

SINCLAIR FATE TO GRAND JURY

Rome Bows in Tribute to New U. S. Cardinals

KISS HAND OF MUNDELEIN AS CHURCH PRINCE

American Charity Praised by Pope.

ROME, March 24.—Catholics Rome in all its glory of scarlet pomp and golden splendor, bowed its head and bent its knee until sunset tonight at the feet of two Americans of humble origin.

In brilliant settings of crimson silk, the cardinals of Chicago and New York, who were made princes of the church at a secret consistory this morning stood hour after hour in the consistory rooms of their respective colleges while crowded columns of changing color passed before them in a lurid melange of medieval and modern splendor.

Scene Full of Color.

The golden braid of the papal ambassadors was succeeded by the flowing purple of the cardinals to be succeeded in turn by the silver lace and swords of gentlemen in waiting whose attire came from the Spain of the middle ages. Barbedots, friars and hooded monks were followed in ascending order by American tourists, whose faces had been denied the customary cosmetics. Long beards, patriarchs from far distant lands and ecclesiastical students of brown and yellow races of the east came to drop on their knees and kiss the rings of America's new cardinals.

Adulation Affects Cardinals.

With obvious humbleness in the face of this adulation, Cardinals Mundelein and Hayes were visibly affected. "It is for no personal merit of mine that this honor has come to me," Cardinal Mundelein said. "The sovereign pontiff desires to reward the good children of Chicago."

Secret Consistory in Gold Room.

It was 10 o'clock in the morning when the day's memorable ceremonies began at the Vatican within the crimson silk draped walls and under the frescoed ceilings of the gold room. Huge historic paintings moved a brilliant company of diplomats, clerics and officials attached to the oldest court in the world. Black robed women, relatives of the attending cardinals, were in the assemblage. Shortly after 10 o'clock all present save the members of the sacred college were excluded by the chamberlains, who entered the room with a cry of "Extra Amone."

Praises Charitableness of U. S.

America and its unshared efforts for the relief of the stricken and suffering peoples of the world came in for the pontiff's highest praise, and then the hopes raised the uplift of church affairs in France, expressed regret and sympathy over the imprisonment and persecution of priests in Russia and the anti-Catholic violence in Italy. At the conclusion of his reading he pronounced the names of two American cardinals and the twenty cardinals present rose to their feet, lifting their red skull caps in sign of acquiescence. Messengers were summoned by the sounding of a small golden bell and the pope handed over to them the "billet-doux" to be delivered immediately to Cardinals Hayes and Mundelein.

Mundelein Is Notified.

The papal coach of shining black, drawn by jet black horses in harness with silver trappings, drew up in front of the College of Propagation at the Vatican, where Mr. Mundelein was waiting. Every inch of available space in the room was filled with priests, students, and lately on all four sides of the enormous long-inlaid wooden table in the center of the room, Archbishop Mundelein stood at one end of the room under a red

Mellon Rates Win in Senate Committee

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., March 24.—[Special.]—The Mellon normal and surtax rates were approved tonight unopposed by the senate finance committee.

Taking advantage of the absence of Senator McCormick (Rep., Ill.) and Senator La Follette (Rep., Wis.), the only two Republicans on the committee who have been considered against the Mellon rate schedule, the committee approved the administration program by a vote of 8 to 7 in a straight party vote.

Actually present at the meeting were only four Republicans and five Democrats, but the Republicans held proxies for all absentees except Senators McCormick and La Follette and the Democrats had the proxies for their colleagues who were absent.

Besides approving the Mellon normal and surtax rates, the committee also approved the earned income section. This section, which provides a 25 per cent reduction in taxes on earned income, was amended to limit this benefit to $10,000 of income, instead of $20,000, as provided in the house bill.

Defeated on One Point. Secretary Mellon had recommended that the $20,000 limitation be wiped out entirely, but the committee refused to take his advice on this point. Under the section as approved the first $5,000 of income is considered exempt, regardless of whether or not it consists of salaries and wages.

At a session earlier in the day the committee voted to eliminate one of the vital features of the Mellon tax program, the provision limiting deduction for capital losses to 12 1/2 per cent to correspond with the 12 1/2 per cent tax on capital gains.

Secretary Mellon had advocated this means of plugging up one of the holes in the present law, and it had been estimated that it would bring in $20,000,000 additional revenue.

Rates as Approved. A normal tax of 3 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income and 6 per cent on the remainder of the net income, instead of 4 and 3 per cent, as in the present law.

Surtax rates commencing at 1 per cent on net income from $10,000 to $12,000; an additional 1 per cent for each $2,000 of net income up to $30,000; then 1 per cent additional for the next $4,000 of net income up to $40,000; and then 1 per cent additional for

NO INSULT TO FLAG, VIEW OF N. U. FACULTY

Legion Starts War on Pacifists.

Contempt for the American flag was not intended in the hissing and booing in the First Methodist church of Evanston on Sunday night, according to the accepted view of Northwestern University officials yesterday. The insults were for Capt. John W. Gorby, Sunday school superintendent and member of the congregation, John Dill Scott, president of the university, believes. For that reason, he announced yesterday, he will take no action.

American Legion officials, on the other hand, will not let the episode drop. They called a special meeting yesterday afternoon to formulate a plan, and called attention to the "menace of pacifist propaganda in universities as exemplified by Northwestern's thirty-eight piece prospective slackers."

They also denounced those responsible for the pulpit speech of Brent Dow Allison, draft slacker.

See National Move. It was contended that the thirty-eight pacifist students at Northwestern, pledged not to fight for their country, even in defense, are part of a national movement to instill pacifism in the colleges, and that the Northwest league hissing should be a warning to be laid in every part of the country.

The impending danger was pointed out at the specially called meeting of the American Legion Association of Cook County yesterday afternoon. Jane Addams and Henry Ford, both of "peace ship" fame, are the instigators of the movement, it was charged. Universities particularly, it is believed, have been singled out as unusually productive propaganda fields.

There was indignation, written and spoken, over the fact that Brent Dow Allison was permitted to speak in a church; that he should be allowed to address university students, and that a minister should invite or permit Allison to deliver a traitorous address. "The Legion men uttered their protest in the form of a resolution.

Student Propaganda a Peril. Many state and federal officials charged that much in the student propaganda was dangerous to the nation's welfare. It was incomprehensible that such things could take place, they said, but pointed out there is no law to prohibit them.

District Attorney Edwin A. Olson and Assistant District Attorney Edwin L. Welz explained there is no federal law against showing disrespect or contempt for the flag. Such a federal statute is in effect in the District of Columbia, but not elsewhere, they stated.

Crowd Ready to Act. Department of justice agents said they were watching with interest the growing "slacker" movement in colleges, but watching is all they are able to do.

State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, at the request of the Legion, assigned Assistant State's Attorney Milton D. Smith and Bert A. Cronson to see what, if any, violation of the law had been committed. They found the following in the Illinois laws:

Who shall publicly mutilate, defile, or deface, or attempt to do so, or cast contempt, either by words or action upon any such flag, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor."

The maximum punishment is imprisonment for thirty days and a fine, they reported. If a conspiracy existed to cast contempt on the flag it is a matter for the grand jury, they stated, and if it is established there will be a trial in the Criminal court.

Commanders of American Legion posts called upon Attorney Frank Comerford, who obtained convictions in the trial of William Brown Lloyd and other "pinkies" for an opinion as to what could be done because of Sunday night's occurrence. Comerford asked that all the facts be first furnished him.

Scott Explains Stand. President Scott of the university said he was positive, from what his informants had told him, that the hissing at the meeting was directed against Capt. Gorby, not the flag that he believed in free speech, pointing out that the university has students from Russia, Germany, and India, and that he was speaking about.

Decrepit Old House Tomb of 3 Recluses

Three elderly recluses, wealthy in real estate holdings, were found dead yesterday in a tumble-down, neglected building that had been their home for more than half a century.

With the discovery of their bodies by a curious boy, who thought the house was deserted, the police began inquiry of a mystery as bizarre and weird as Poe's story of the fall of the gloomy old house of Usher.

The victims were two brothers, blind since birth, and the spinster sister, who gave up all thought of marriage to attend them. They were identified as Endre and Theodore Klosser, 70 and 72 years old, respectively, and Annie Klosser, aged 65. Neighbors recalled that their father ran a bakery shop on the first floor for a long time. He died fourteen years ago.

An Old, Old Building. The building is a three-story brick structure at 1210 West Erie street. Its windows are dull with dust, their curtains gray from the soot of the years. On the second floor many of the panes are broken.

One of these broken windows caught the attention of a boy with an eye for profit. He decided to crawl through the hole and search for plundering accessories and other salvageable material that a junk man might buy.

The boy dropped from the window sill into a dark room heavy with dust and stale air. He stumbled past ancient furniture and gloomy pictures of another generation. Rats pattered down the hallway at his approach.

The Bodies Are Found. In a dismal bedroom the boy came upon the three bodies. The older Klosser, the one brother, lay near the door. The other brother lay nearby on the floor. The boy fled.

He ran down Erie street and notified a policeman. Assistant State's Attorney John Shorrock and Coroner Physician Joseph Springer were later summoned.

Death, according to the former, was due to malnutrition or exposure. Dr. Springer reserved his opinion pending a postmortem.

Owned Real Estate. Police learned that since the death of a sister two years ago neither of the blind men had left the building. They owned considerable property in the neighborhood, one piece of real estate, at 548 North Racine avenue, being worth a large sum.

The three of them had an account at the Security Trust and Savings bank. It was said, but they very rarely spent any money.

that the relationship between Mr. Daugherty and oil was very close, and that it would be better if the oil case were prosecuted by a man who did not come under the possible influence of the attorney general in any way.

Great Day for Democrats.
The Democrats made quite a field day of the Sinclair affair, even after the question had been decided. They boomed and barked away at the Republican side of the chamber, which was conspicuously deserted during a large part of the session. The crowded galleries, however, testified to the intense interest in the subject, even if the Republicans are becoming bored.

One of the political sensations of the day at the capital was an editorial in the Washington Post, in which the question, "What is the matter with the Republicans?" was put before the nation. Are they "craven weaklings," or are they "trembling with fear," the staid old Post surprisingly went to know.

Elkins Vets for Sinclair.
The Republican leadership that lifted its head during the day was personified by Senator Spencer (Mo.) and Senator Elkins. Mr. Elkins wandered into the Teapot committee hearing and later wandered into the Senate and voted no on the proposition that might send Harry Sinclair to jail.

That was the extent of his contribution. Senator Spencer expressed "grave doubts" as to the right of the Senate to conduct such investigations as Daugherty and Teapot. He said he would talk briefly on this, but the star-spangled checks, one senator chamber went one revolution while he discussed the legal phases and read from Supreme court decisions to show that Congress could not punish witnesses for refusing to tell secrets in legislative bodies.

Senator Lodge (Rep., Mass.) addressed himself briefly to some legal point and seemed to have no fight in him. Senator Borah (Rep., Idaho) scowled and spoke a few words and then left the chamber. The governor senators, such as Magnus Johnson (Farmer-Labor, Minn.) and Robert E. Howell (Rep., Neb.) had nothing to say.

Golden Gate Is Silent.
There was no news from California. Senator Hiram Johnson was running for the presidency, and Senator Sam Shortridge (Rep., Cal.) was draped in pictorial space across his chair. The only copy members were the Democrats.

FALL'S KIN WON'T TALK
The chief of committee development of the day, aside from the formal certification of the contempt case against Sinclair, was the refusal of C. C. Chase, collector at El Paso and son-in-law of Albert B. Fall, to testify. He had been called to throw some light on the financial transactions of Fall in Pueblo and the matter of acquisition of blooded stock to the Fall ranch.

A small, dark young man, he timidly made his way to the witness chair in the great marble pillared caucus room and read in answer to the first question from Senator Walsh (Dem., Mont.) a prepared statement in which he declined to answer on the ground that he might incriminate himself. He had been referred to in previous testimony as having appeared before McKinley at Cleveland with a request that McKinley represent himself as having loaned Fall $100,000.

The witness indicated that he would answer all questions in a similar manner, and he was excused.

Asks About Daugherty's Gift.
At the opening of the committee hearing Senator Spencer said that as a subpoena had been issued for Fred Upham in regard to the contribution of Mr. Sinclair to the Republican national committee he thought subpoenas should also be issued for the chairman and treasurer of the Democratic national committee. He recalled that Mr. Daugherty had testified that he had given $75,000 to the Democratic cause but that records showed only $4,000.

He remarked that, of course, the Democrats would not object to this.

Senators Gasp at Truth from an Old Oil Man When He Explains to Them Where Sinclair Outwitted Uncle Sam

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
Washington, D. C., March 24.—[Special.]—Well, neighbors, it was refreshing today at the Teapot investigation, albeit that has been about the last pot—or dome, either—from which you could extract anything refreshing in recent days.

It was refreshing today because, after a pretty steady run of high class and low class evasions, along came old man Tarbell, who was forthright and crisp and unfettered, and who could answer a plain question with yes or no instead of with "Give me liberty or give me death."

This W. W. Tarbell is a brother of Ida Tarbell, biographer of Lincoln and historian of Standard Oil.

He showed that the Mammoth Oil company's leases on Teapot Dome were very sweet for Harry Sinclair, but an extremely sour apple for you, the American people, and he did it in such a homely, common sense way that any bright American child, whose national inheritance at Teapot Dome design and improvidence men have been frittering away, could understand him.

Want Him to Talk More.
The senators were so impressed by this novel treatment of urgent matters that, as Mr. Tarbell was leaving the stand, they asked him whether he could find time to subject the Doherty leases to the same analysis for them. He said, "Sure," and then Senator Spencer (Rep., Mo.), who is lightly touched with pomp, asked him where he might be addressed in the matter of forwarding to him a copy of the Doherty leases. The old oil operator from Bethel, Conn., replied: "You can hand it to me here now if you want to. I'll go over it while I'm here in Washington."

Such expedition caused Senator Spencer to blink three times.

Here are some of the Tarbell bombast relative to Harry Sinclair's Teapot Dome lease on your and your neighbor's property:

Compared with the ordinary farm lease it is not equitable, not even brutal, and certainly not in the interests of the public.

Lease Made "Under Cover."
"It was not granted with open bidding, but under cover and without payment of bonds.

"It carries attractive but deceitful royalties, so hedged that only their minimum need be paid.

"It puts into the hands of the lessee a noncompetitive sale or exchange privilege to the limit of the value of the royalties, for supply to the navy.

as there was nothing political in the investigation.

Senator Walsh replied that if this was considered pertinent to investigation of oil leases under the Republican administration he would not object. Senator Spencer said there were 700 leases of all lands in California and Wyoming under the last Democratic administration. Senator Walsh said they were not naval oil leases, and a dispute arose, which was not settled.

Interest in G. O. P. Finances.
The uncertainty thrown about the financing of the Republican national committee deficit by the testimony of Hays, his aid, Mr. O'Neill, and Harold Vixian, the New York Times reporter, has led certain senators to consider the wisdom of an independent investigation of this subject.

One senator said today that he had been giving much attention during the last two days to this deficit and had concluded that an independent investigation was necessary. He will have a conference with his colleagues on the question.

Senator Walsh, chief examiner of the committee, issued a subpoena today for the cashier of the Empire

Trust company in New York to produce before the committee all the records that will throw light on Sinclair's gift, whether 75,000 shares or $75,000. Mr. Hays testified that the money was used, he thought, to cancel in part a note held against the committee in the Empire Trust company.

Another Denial from Ohio.
Carmel A. Thompson of Cleveland, a man who was always at the elbow of Warren Harding during the pre-White House days in Marion, was the first witness called. He read a statement making specific denial of a statement made by Tiffin Gilmore of an alleged train conversation on political deals which made Harding President. He said he did not even see Mr. Gilmore at the time and place specified.

"I became acquainted with Jake Hamon after he arrived in Chicago for the convention," he said. "I did not hear him make a proposition of any kind to Senator Harding or his associates for the delivery of the Oklahoma delegates. He certainly made no such proposition to me."

He denied that he was interested in any oil lands or oil stock. He said he was in the iron and steel business and had formerly been associated with Great Northern interests. He described himself as a Harding "booster."

HIS VERSION OF CONVENTION
Asked about the nomination maneuvering, Mr. Thompson said he would go into it fully if the committee wished.

SENATOR WALSH—When did you first learn that Senator Harding would be nominated?

MR. THOMPSON—I learned along late in the evening of the day prior to the nomination that he was, as we would say in a convention, that the deadlock was hopeless between the three major candidates, and that Harding was likely to be given some additional votes the following morning in an effort to see whether he could develop strength.

SENATOR WALSH—Well, of course, there is a fact understood that night that he would be nominated the next day?

MR. THOMPSON—It was perfectly well understood that night that there was going to be an effort to nominate him the next day, yes, sir.

SENATOR WALSH—Well, of course, there was an effort to nominate him from the start?

MR. THOMPSON—I mean that there was an effort to nominate him from the start.

Teapot Dome negotiations, "the larger producers would have turned up there and bid for that Teapot Dome, and you would have been in much better shape. You would have had ten, fifteen, twenty producers there and you would have got your oil out in competition."

The veteran feared that, as a result of having lollied in the arms of a deplorable dentist for several days, he might not always make himself heard, and they would have to bear with him. But they had no occasion to exercise forbearance. They caught his meanings all right, for, whatever his other dental deficiencies may be, the teeth in his intellect meet in a firm bite.

Chides Senate About Bonus.
To the committee on public lands and surveys, which is conducting this investigation, he said:

"You made a bad shot in that bonus."

And about the Sinclair crowd he bit off this:

"They deceived somebody."

For the victims of the bargain he was sorry, saying as he wagged his head:

"I don't know who sat in in writing this contract for the government, but he wasn't an off man, nor I don't believe he is a son of an old man."

Senator Spencer asked him if he had ever contemplated becoming interested in the naval reserve oil leases if they were opened up to competitive bidding. That man, who said he had been "everything in oil" from coast to coast around the Pennsylvania derelicts when a well was being developed, to treasurer and general manager of the Pure Oil company, gave an answer that epitomized the spirit of refreshment which almost every line of his testimony diffused through the room.

A Relief After Evasions.
It was wonderful after days of the deviousness of soft stepping party managers and the blackguardism of rum runners and spies to hear these words in the senate caucus room:

"No, sir, I have no desire to operate a government lease. I am not a big enough operator to bid for it against the big companies, and I am not so anxious for a few million dollars—although I have had the opportunity to have them if I wanted to go the right way for them—as to attempt to discredit my own ideas of government."

Often after he talked for all the world like a page of Lapham's talk in Howell's "Rise of Silas Lapham."

They asked him the vital question whether you can tell just what territory is affected by wells that are adjacent to it. He replied:

"They will tell you, you can, but you can't. The drill tells the story."

Score for Each Tenderfoot.
At certain questions as to the possibilities of doing this, that, or the other, he would return the committee a withering glance, accompanied by the words: "That would be just a darn fool thing."

And again:

"If you can arrange a decent, fair lease with decent, fair men, you are all right."

"Give me a chance to be honest; you'll get your money."

On future oil sources and on what he called "the trend of oil to the south" he was both interesting and important, saying:

"It is a very bank in the hills of Wyoming, and you could have saved it and made some money on it when it gets scarce. Your supply can be from California, from Mexico, from Louisiana, from Honduras, from Colombia, from Venezuela."

"And from down 700 miles south of Buenos Aires. There is a great oil field there. Englishmen developed it, and the government took it away from them. And from Uruguay, the Chilean country."

Letting Another Chance Slip By.
They have got the finest field of high grade oil in the world, not in amount, but in quality, in the Peruvian countries, and it has been there for years, and the British government is taking it away from you while you are sitting here letting these fellows slide it from you."

The old war horse wound up with his senators by telling them that, as to certain advantages inherent in competitive bidding which the government had overlooked, "a boy who had had a few years' experience in the oil business could have done that for them."

Senator Kendrick of Wyoming drew Tarbell's parting shot with this:

"You said when you first prepared your statement in connection with your views on all this oil business that the Associated Press could not use it?"

J. O'Neill of New York, assistant to Will Hays, in which complete denial was made of a conversation with Mr. Vixian of the New York Times in which O'Neill is said to have admitted that Mr. Hays got 75,000 shares of oil stock from Harry Sinclair as his contribution to the Republican party deficit.

Mr. Vixian was then called to the stand. He stated that he had been a newspaper reporter for twenty-four years. He was assigned by the Times last Thursday to question Mr. Hays in New York on the stock gift story. He had formerly worked with O'Neill on the World, and sought him first. Detailing his talk with O'Neill, he said:

"We discussed several things as we went along the side of the Herald by Mr. Munsey, and the fact that I had rejoined the Times staff. Also, we discussed these investigations in Washington, and the possible political effect."

Hays Was Not Worried.
I asked him what Mr. Hays thought of these investigations, and he told me that he was not concerned, as far as he personally had anything to do with them, but that he was concerned because he felt that the memory of President Harding was being belittled, and he had thought very highly of President Harding."

"I then said something about the possibilities of the future regarding Mr. Hays. He told me that Mr. Hays' contract with the motion picture interests had another year to run, and that he believed that thereafter it would be renewed, or that Mr. Hays would head a moving picture concern of his own."

"At 4:15 in the afternoon I called him on the telephone and asked him whether Mr. Hays had returned. He said no, but that he was likely to be in at almost any minute. I said, 'Well, I will get up there just as fast as I can; if he comes in try to hold him so I can see him.' He said, 'Come ahead.'"

WHAT HE SAID HAYS PLANNED
I reached Mr. O'Neill's office almost the stroke of 5 o'clock. I sent in my name to Mr. O'Neill, who came out into the reception room, and I said, 'Did Hays come back?' and he said, 'Yes, he came in, but he was in a great rush and didn't stay five minutes. I said, 'Did you see him?' He said, 'Yes.' I said, 'Well, what about it? What is he going to testify to?' He said, 'He is going to tell them he got the stock.'"

"Later I asked him about the Hays law firm in Sullivan, Ind., and he told me that Mr. Hays had stipulated in making his contract with the moving picture interests that he should retain his connection with the law firm, and he went on to say that while Hinkley Hays was the active member of the firm, which always appeared in court, Will H. Hays was active in the firm, and he told me that it was very lucrative. He said that his income from the law firm, he believed, was in the neighborhood of $40,000."

"When I sat down to write the story, I was struck with the fact that while Mr. O'Neill had given me one version, I also had obtained from Mr. Hays, also a former chairman of the Republican national committee, a statement to the effect that he did not believe the story; he thought it ridiculous, and had never heard of the stock transaction.

"So I thought for some time over the matter as to how it would be possible for those two men both to be conveying a correct impression, and I found to my satisfaction an answer:

"It was for that reason that in writing the story I did not say that the $75,000 was to make up the deficit, but I said that it figured in the settlement of the deficit."

"That was all I heard about the story. It appeared on Friday morning and nothing was heard from Mr. Hays or Mr. O'Neill during the whole of Friday, and on Saturday, sitting here in this room, I fully expected to hear Mr. Hays testify that he had received the stock."

The O'Neill telegram was branded as "entirely false" by the witness.

Martin J. Powers, a Philadelphia lawyer, who also is interested in a brewery, was questioned as to whether he and Col. James Darden and a Mr. McGlynn had raised a fund of $2,000,000 for the purpose of securing a Teapot Dome lease.

"I deny that absolutely as a mean and contemptible lie," he said.

PEER INTO MELLON CORPORATIONS FOR TAX FAVORS

Senators Also Discuss Rebates Records.

By ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
Washington, D. C., March 24.—(Special.)—Whether any of the numerous great corporations in which Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is interested received any unwarranted reductions, rebates, abatements, or other favors in the assessment of income and profits taxes is to be thoroughly investigated by the senate committee now organizing the administration of the internal revenue bureau.

The first step will be the examination of the tax records of the Mellon corporations which Nelson Hartson, solicitor for the bureau, told the committee the treasury would furnish. Memoranda written by officials of the internal revenue bureau involving the disposition of a case of the Standard Steel Car company, one of the Mellon companies, was furnished to the committee by the bureau.

Prompted by Witness' Remark.
These documents were desired because of a statement by a witness last week that he had seen a letter in which it was asked that this company be favored because of the fact that Secretary Mellon was interested in it. There were several letters in which various subordinate officials asked that the case be expedited. The only letter in which Secretary Mellon's name was mentioned was one by T. J. S. Kishbaugh, acting chief of one of the sections of the income tax unit, to B. L. Wheeler, chief of engineers. The letter stated that Secretary Mellon was "interested in the above company and has requested that the information necessary be compiled as quickly as possible."

Records Difficult to Get.
Attention was directed to a recent report to congress showing approximately $123,000,000 returned to taxpayers. Senator Couzens said this represented only a portion of those allowed. "I have searched high and low for a claim I had which was allowed, but I could not find," he said. Mr. Hartson replied that this was a claim in abatement and was not a refund. "That is, there was no money changing hands," he explained. Senator Couzens said that he wanted to have his own case brought before the committee to show the $100,000 credit he was allowed, how it was granted, and the possibilities of such a practice in disposing of tax claims. He said that he believed that his case was typical.

Great Possibilities of Graft.
"I want to show the possibilities for graft—the opportunities for 'fixes,'" Senator Couzens added. "I did not hire a 'fixer,' but I got the claim allowed because it was justified. If I had been dishonest and you had been dishonest, I could have afforded to have given you $200,000. The solicitor knows of a rebate made to me. Whether it was paid in cash does not make any difference. If it had not been allowed I would have had to pay the additional tax. These rebates should be reported to congress, too, as a check on the work of the bureau, just as the others—the refunds—are reported as a check."

Mr. Hartson said that there was no objection to bringing Senator Couzens' case before the committee, inasmuch as the taxpayer himself was willing for that to be done. Senator King asked how many abatements had been made. Mr. Hartson said there was no way of telling, because of the voluminous character of the income tax files.

Abatements Exceed Refund.
Senator King said: "It would exceed a billion dollars, wouldn't it?"

"I would not want to concede that," replied Mr. Hartson. Senator Jones (Dem., N. M.) asked if the abatements would about equal the refunds.

Mr. Hartson said: "They would more than equal them. I should say that abatements were much in excess of refunds. There are millions of cases down there. It is almost impossible to ascertain what was determined in all these decisions."

Quill Barber, formerly an auditor in the special assessment section of the income tax bureau, serving from March 20, 1919, to Jan. 10, 1921, was asked to tell of his success as a "tax expert."

Senator Couzens asked him if he had

COLLEGE BOYS RESENT PACIFISTS' INSULT TO FLAG

Members of the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity, aroused by the incidents that occurred at church meeting addressed by Brent Dow Allison, stage a demonstration by gathering around the colors in their frat house and singing "The Star Spangled Banner." The flag was generally displayed from frat houses at Northwestern university yesterday as a sign of resentment at the acts of the pacifists. (TRIBUNE Photo.)

2 MORE INQUIRIES INTO GOVERNMENT BUREAUS ARE VOTED BY HOUSE

Washington, D. C., March 24.—The house today authorized two more investigations—one into the aircraft industry, the other into alleged duplication of government bonds at the bureau of engraving and printing.

At the suggestion of Representative Longworth (Ohio), Republican leader, the speaker was authorized to name a committee of nine members instead of seven, as provided in the resolution.

DOLLAR LINER, ON WORLD CRUISE, AGROUND, IS SAFE

New York, March 24.—(Special.)—Press cables and radiograms from the captain of the steamship President Monroe informed officials of the Dollar line that the vessel had gone aground on reefs between Barryport and Fowey Rocks lighthouse, thirty-two miles from Miami, Fla.

Capt. H. Dowling reported there was no immediate danger and he hoped to float with high tide during the night. However, rescue ships were dispatched from Key West, including the coast guard cutter Sauk, the tug Warbler, and the naval tug Bay Spring.

Aboard the Monroe are thirty-three passengers and a crew of 160. The Monroe, which is 500 feet long, is one of the ships recently purchased by the Dollar line from the United States Shipping board and is the first to be put into world cruise service. A number of prominent persons are among the passengers.

NO INSULT TO FLAG, VIEW OF N. U. FACULTY

Legion Starts War on Pacifists.

Ernest Tittle, pastor of the First Methodist church, invited Allison to speak. Howard Becker, one of "the thirty-eight," was another who insisted the disrespect was for the Sunday school superintendent and not the flag. "I regret Sunday night's disturbance," he said. "I wouldn't hiss the flag, even if I wouldn't fight for it."

A. J. Hellstrom, adjutant of Evanston Legion post, was of those who were positive the pacifists' outburst was against the flag, not for Capt. Gordy, the Sunday school superintendent. He said he was related to the events of Sunday night to the assembled post commanders yesterday afternoon. His statement brought a storm of condemnation for those responsible, as had been evidenced at an earlier meeting.

MORTENSON MAY "TAKE A FLING" AT INSURANCE
After thirty-four years in the field of education, Peter A. Mortenson, former superintendent of schools of Chicago, today stands at the crossroads, ready at 53 to make a change, to enter business, and not knowing whether to turn to insurance or to bonds.

Mr. Mortenson says he believes it will be insurance. He has been studying insurance, he said, and he feels that he can work out a line in which he can, in a way, combine it with education and thus remain contented with the change. He was found in the office of the Equitable Life in the Conway building, seated at a desk, reading a copy of "Life Underwriting as a Career," by Edward A. Woods.

It is going to be hard going for a while," he said. "But I'm going to try it, and if it doesn't go well, I still have my principal's certificate."

RELEASE UPHAM AS A WITNESS FOR TIME BEING

Testimony Not Needed, as Books Show.

Fred W. Upham, treasurer of the Republican national committee, wired yesterday from Pasadena to David D. Barry, sergeant at arms of the United States senate, as follows:

"I accept your telegram as notice of subpoena, and I will appear as soon as possible if the senate committee still thinks it necessary for me to take a four night journey after considering the following statement:

"I am treasurer of the Republican national committee and have been since early in 1918. I keep a complete record of the names and addresses and amounts of all contributions to the party fund and report under oath to the clerk of the house of representatives a complete statement at the conclusion of all campaigns.

"This official now has on file at the capitol my reports of the 1920 and 1922 campaigns made under oath. In 1920, before and after the convention, Harry F. Sinclair contributed a total of $3,000. I have not received a contribution from Harry F. Sinclair or any one connected with him since the ones referred to above.

"This does not in any way discredit the Hays testimony, as a loan at the Empire Trust company of New York was reduced by about $100,000 late in 1922. The bank simply notified me that an indorsement had been made on the committee note without detail as to who paid it or the names of the contributors. This is entered on the treasurer's books by a bookkeeping entry only.

"Until I read the Hays testimony I had not heard Harry F. Sinclair or his associates mentioned as possible or actual contributors.

"Please advise me if the senate committee still desires my appearance."
Last night Mr. Upham wired THE TRIBUNE as follows:
"I am now in receipt of a telegram from the sergeant at arms to the effect that the public lands and surveys committee now says that I need not answer the subpoena unless further requested to do so."

$750,000 FIRE DESTROYS STORE IN SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, Ill., March 24.—Fire tonight destroyed Myers Bros. clothing store, one of the largest of its kind in central Illinois, and for three hours menaced two blocks in the business section of the city. The loss is estimated at $750,000.

$350,000 Fire at Bloomington.
Bloomington, Ind., March 24.—After burning nearly five hours, a fire which destroyed a city block here and threatened for the time the entire business district of the town, was brought under control late tonight. The loss is estimated at $350,000. Fire departments from Bedford and Martinsville were rushed to Bloomington.

Oh Henry!

POPE NAMES TWO U. S. CARDINALS 'MID OLD GLORIES

canopy, which covered the entrance to the papal throne room adjoining. The chamberlain announced the arrival of messengers from the Vatican and Archbishop Mundelein, the cardinal in Spanish costume with a silver sword left his place at the Chicago prelate's side and walked across the room to escort the new arrivals. He returned with the secretary to Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, two priests and the papal messenger in court dress. The latter bowed before Archbishop Mundelein, addressed him as "your grace" and announced that he carried a message from the pope whereupon he handed over a large sealed envelope, which Archbishop Mundelein handed to the master of ceremonies standing on his right.

Becomes "Your Eminence." The master of ceremonies, clad in purple robes, opened the envelope and read: "His holiness in secret consistory this morning has benignantly decided to elevate to the dignity of cardinal Archbishop George Mundelein of the diocese of Chicago in thanks and in consideration of the great work he has done."

CARDINAL GASPARRI. Cardinal Gasparri's secretary then addressed Archbishop Mundelein as "your eminence" and expressed congratulations, asking permission to be the first to salute the new cardinal. He advanced to Cardinal Mundelein, dropped on one knee, took the cardinal's extended hand, and pressed it to his lips.

New Cardinal Accepts Honor. Speaking first in Italian and then in English Cardinal Mundelein replied: "Today the entire American nation rejoices at the great honor that has come to two of its sons. For in the consistory of this morning the holy father has called the heads of the two greatest American sees to become scarlet clad princes of the holy church and to form a part of its highest senate. No one recognizes better than I that it is for no personal merit of mine that this honor has come to me. It has come by the great fatherly kindness of the great sovereign pontiff, who desires in my person to reward his good children in Chicago and likewise in this particular manner to recognize the sterling catholicity of that vast territory lying west of the Allegheny mountains."

"But for that very reason this new dignity will, with the grace of God, be an additional incentive for me to labor more zealously for the spread of God's kingdom in Chicago and the west, to train and equip a large body of splendid ministers of the gospel, that our priests and people may always be in ornament to the church and a credit to America, and a source of strength and consolation to the holy see. I am grateful for the precious message which you have brought me, and I beg you to offer to the holy father my heartfelt thanks and assure his holiness that on Wednesday afternoon, in

LIFE STORIES OF NEW U. S. CARDINALS

His eminence, George Cardinal Mundelein, head of the archdiocese of Chicago, one of the most cosmopolitan dioceses in the world, has devoted his life to the uplifting of humanity by what his parishioners describe as throwing the bonds of love tightly around the younger generation. He has been declared the youngest bishop ever entrusted with an archdiocese of the importance of the Chicago district.

After his installation as archbishop of Chicago, Feb. 9, 1916, as a successor to Archbishop James E. Quigley, he set about strengthening the organization of the parochial schools.

As a memorial to Archbishop Quigley, he instituted the erection of Quigley Memorial seminary for the education of Roman Catholic candidates for the priesthood.

Through his influence the Knights of Columbus sponsored an institution for reclamation of wayward boys, and the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters became sponsors of a movement to provide clubs for working girls.

He is a great believer in the progressive spirit of Chicago and has declared it to be the greatest field for his work in the country. He is active in Chicago's civic, educational, and public affairs.

Born in the crowded east side of New York city, July 2, 1872, Archbishop Mundelein has advanced steadily through his exceptional ability as administrator, counselor, and diplomat. He received his earlier education in St. Nicholas parochial school and old De La Salle institute, where he was graduated in 1897. In 1899 he was graduated from Manhattan college, and subsequently went to St. Vincent's seminary, Beatty, Pa., to take up theological studies.

In September, 1892, he was sent by Bishop Charles E. McDonnell of the diocese of Brooklyn, to the Urban College of Propaganda, in Rome, where he repeated his theological studies and took a special course in the Academy of Sacred Liturgy, obtaining his degree in 1895. At the age of 23, he was ordained to the priesthood by Bishop McDonnell on June 2, 1895. In the chapel of the Sisters of the Holy Cross in Rome. He celebrated his first mass the next day in the crypt of St. Peter's, assisted by the late Dr. Brophy, a companion in the Propaganda.

Returning to America, he was appointed associate secretary to Bishop McDonnell on Sept. 17, and two years later, in December, 1897, became chancellor of the diocese of Brooklyn, an office which he held for fourteen years, until Sept. 1, 1909.

He was consecrated bishop Sept. 21, 1909, at St. James' pro-cathedral, Brooklyn.

The ceremony of the solemn reception and enthronement of Archbishop Mundelein was celebrated in Holy Name cathedral, Chicago. The pallium was conferred by Mgr. John Bonanno, apostolic delegate from Rome, the most elaborate Catholic ceremonies ever conducted in Chicago. They were attended by 6 archbishops, 23 bishops, and more than 800 priests.

Hayes Born in New York. The Most Rev. Patrick Joseph Hayes was born in New York Nov. 20, 1867, the son of Daniel and Mary Gleeson Hayes. He was educated at De La Salle academy and Manhattan college and after being graduated from the latter began his ecclesiastical education at St. Joseph's seminary, Troy, N. Y. He continued his theological studies at the Catholic University of America and was ordained a priest in 1892.

The archbishop's first parish work was at St. Gabriel's church, New York, under the late Cardinal, then Mgr. Farley. When the latter became auxiliary bishop of New York he named the young priest as his secretary, in which capacity he served from 1895 to 1914. In addition he became chancellor of the diocese in 1903 and the same year was chosen first president of Cathedral college. In 1907 he was made a domestic prelate with the title of monsignor.

In 1914 while on a trip to Rome Cardinal Farley asked the pope to make Mgr. Hayes his auxiliary bishop. The request was granted and he was constituted titular bishop of Tagaste. Appointed pastor of St. Stephen's church in 1915, he continued in that capacity until the death of Cardinal Farley, whom he succeeded as archbishop.

Kim Mundelein's Hand. As the messengers hurriedly departed for the American college to deliver a similar notification to Cardinal Hayes, friends of Cardinal Mundelein pressed forward to kneel before him and to kiss his hand. First among these was the aged monsignor who was vice rector of the college back in the days when Cardinal Mundelein was a humble student there. Tears were in the eyes of both during the meeting.

There followed students and prelates and ambassadors who were received in the throne room adjoining. Three American nuns were the only women present. In long lines that moved slowly in the direction of the new cardinal were Carmelite monks with tonsured heads and wearing their bronze and white habits, Augustinian friars, garbed in coarse black and Dominican fathers in white and black. There were Paulist and Jesuit priests and fathers of the Blessed Sacrament, wearing insignia of their order embroidered in white on the front of their black cassocks.

The reception was halted at noon to permit the new cardinal to break his fast, but it was resumed in the early afternoon and continued until darkness. It will resume again tomorrow morning.

Hayes Also Congratulated. At the American college Archbishop Hayes, clad in his scarlet robes of a bishop, sat in an arm chair at one end of the reception room and received prominent New Yorkers while he awaited the arrival of the papal heralds. Among those who paid their early respects to the prelate of St. Patrick's cathedral were Judges Morgan O'Brien and Alfred Talley, John Whalen, Edward Hearse, Paul Chamberlain, Thomas Kelley, and Mgrs. Walsh and Lavelle.

The atmosphere of the room, whose walls were draped in scarlet silk, was almost suffocating from the tightly packed crowd of students, monks, and friars. Painted portraits of Cardinals Gibbons and Farley looked down on the contents to the master of ceremonies, who read them aloud in Latin. Cardinal Gasparri's secretary addressed the cardinal as "your eminence," congratulated him in Latin, and then, dropping to his knees, kissed the ring on the extended hand of Cardinal Hayes.

Speaks to Americans. The Cardinal responded in Latin briefly and then spoke informally in English to all present in the room.

"I want to say a few words to those who have come from far off America," he said. "My first thought is one of deepest gratitude to almighty God. In this tremendous soul searching hour may God give benediction to the vicar of Christ who has seen fit to honor my diocese. May he long reign and guide the holy church and become an even greater power."

"My next thought is of the eternal city, of this sacred soil from whence I will go across the sea to work with greater zeal. My thoughts are for my dear homeland today, when two of its greatest sons are thus supremely honored. The people of America will rejoice, irrespective of creed, because we was estimated at $50,000.

How thousands are preventing tooth decay by making their mouths healthy

Now that we know the acids of the mouth are the great cause of tooth decay, we realize we must do more than give our teeth a temporary cleaning.

For temporary cleaning cannot keep back these acids.

Only healthy, active mouth glands can neutralize the acids as fast as they form.

To give their mouths the invigorating treatment they need—thousands are using Pebecco.

Like all tooth pastes it cleans and polishes the enamel, but in addition gently stimulates the mouth glands. It causes a full normal flow of fluids, sufficient to check the acids.

It leaves the mouth re-vitalized, stimulated, tingling with cleanliness and health.

THE under layers of his tender skin are to blame

Reach them in this simple way and eczema is instantly relieved

THAT constant succession of rashes, chafings, and irritations or roughness on baby's skin! What can the young mother rely on to stop each as it starts, heal it, drive it away?

Ordinary surface remedies are not enough. It is deep down in the under layers of the skin that the real root of the trouble lies. Tiny cells and nerve ends inflamed and irritated, pores clogged with poisonous germs—these are what must be reached and brought back to normal.

To thousands of mothers, careful physicians are today recommending Resinol Ointment as a safe and effective remedy for constant use. Absolutely pure, healing, mildly antiseptic, Resinol will often soothe away in a day or so the most stubborn rash, or the most trifling blemish. Even a light application sinks deep into the pores, attacks the root of the disorder, and starts the skin again acting normally.

If your child has today any spot, rash, or irritation of the skin, apply Resinol. Resinol is absolutely harmless. It cannot irritate the delicate texture of baby skin. You can use it without fear. Its results are surprising. Get a jar at your druggist, or send for a free trial sample to Dept. 10, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

BRENNAN SCORES G. O. P. ON DENIAL OF SANITARY PLEA

White House Ignores Our
Just Demand, He Says.

Has the present national administration "traded" Chicago's health interests for political considerations?

George E. Brennan, Democratic leader in Illinois, asks this question in a formal statement issued last night. The spirited statement was provoked by the failure last week of John W. Weeks, secretary of war, to endorse the Madden bill or any similar measure which would permit this city to maintain sewage disposal facilities regarded as absolutely essential to the well being of more than 3,000,000 persons. In submitting the "question," Mr. Brennan cites Henry Ford's success in his bid for Muscle Shoals.

The Question at Issue.

The sanitary district of Chicago, meeting demands of a rapidly increasing population, now diverts from $600 to $10,000 cubic feet of Lake Michigan water per second through the drainage canal here. Certain factions, domestic and Canadian, seek to confine the flow to 4,187 cubic feet per second. This, a long time ago, was prescribed by a war department order, which last summer was upheld by a district court decision. An appeal from the decision is to be heard in the United States Supreme court in November.

Mr. Brennan's statement follows: "For some time it has been apparent that Chicago and the middle west have had little or no influence with the present national administration and that the administration has had little sympathy with its interests."

"Chicago and the middle west did not complain. They do not believe in sectionalism and all they wanted was a fair deal."

"Gradually, however, they are seeing the light. They saw the appointment by the President of a private secretary as a direct bid for southern Republican delegates to the Republican national convention."

Ford Visits Coolidge.

"They saw Henry Ford, then considered a possibility for the presidency, go to Washington, confer with the President, and come away his supporter. A few weeks later it was announced that the President was in favor of the gift of Muscle Shoals with its tremendous water power possibilities to Henry Ford. A little later the house of representatives passed the bill which gave Ford what he wanted."

"A little later it was openly announced that the President expected to get the votes of the northwestern states in return for legislation which they had demanded. Numerous other trades were made."

"Then came the time that Chicago wanted something. It wasn't much to ask for, merely adequate protection of the lives and health of its 3,000,000 inhabitants."

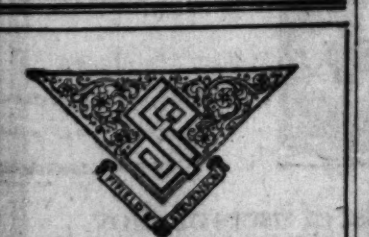

"There was unanimity behind its request. The city and Illinois valley people in our state had composed their differences. Both political parties through their representatives and organizations backed it. Every important civic organization had expressed itself in its favor."

Chicago's Plea Denied.

"Finally the administration made known its position. The secretary of war, Mr. Weeks, sent a letter to a committee of congress. He declared in that letter that Chicago should not obtain what it wanted—that the protection of the health of its 3,000,000 inhabitants was a minor matter; that there were interests in Canada and other sections that opposed Chicago's demands, and that they should not be granted."

"The fact that the national administration is unfriendly to Chicago and its interests should not prevent us from obtaining justice. I hope that the press and the people, particularly those who have access to representatives of other cities and states, will do their utmost to see that congress is thoroughly acquainted with the terrible peril confronting our great city."

"Chicago is here to stay. If Mr. Coolidge and his administration oppose it, I believe there is enough spirit left among Chicagoans to say that he and his administration must be overruled."

BANK CASHIER INDICTED FOR $55,000 THEFT

Oliver H. Trambly, cashier of the Hyde Park State bank, was yesterday indicted for the embezzlement of approximately $55,000 from the institution where he was employed.

According to the evidence presented by Assistant State's Attorney Freeman L. Fairbank, Trambly "borrowed" the money from the bank to use in speculation on the stock market.

Trambly, who is married and lives at 7234 Bennett avenue, has been in the employ of the bank for some years. The loss is covered by the man's bond, according to bank officials.

Escaping Gas Kills Two; Found Dead in Their Beds

Gas escaping from a broken pipe in the wall of a one-story building at 3230 West Harrison street early yesterday morning caused the death of Joseph Field, 59 years old, and Louis, a brother, 22 years old. They were found dead in their bed.

CHARGE BROTHER, 2 OTHERS KILLED DR. ZOE WILKINS

Kansas City, Mo., March 24.—A joint charge of first degree murder was filed late today against B. F. Tarpley, a railroad yardmaster; Dillard Davies, Negro janitor, and Charles C. Wilkins in connection with the slaying here of Dr. Zoe Wilkins, osteopath.

The three were remanded to jail without bond and will be held for preliminary trial Saturday.

James Anderson, assistant prosecutor, declared Tarpley's failure to make certain explanations at the coroner's hearing and discrepancies in the Negro's statements concerning his movements on the night the murder is believed to have been committed prompted him to recommend the charges against those two men.

Testimony indicating that Charles Wilkins had quarreled with his sister on several occasions, and in which he was charged with brutality toward her, led to the charge of murder against him, Anderson said.

WOMEN WHO BOB HAIR TO LOSE IT, EDITOR ASSERTS

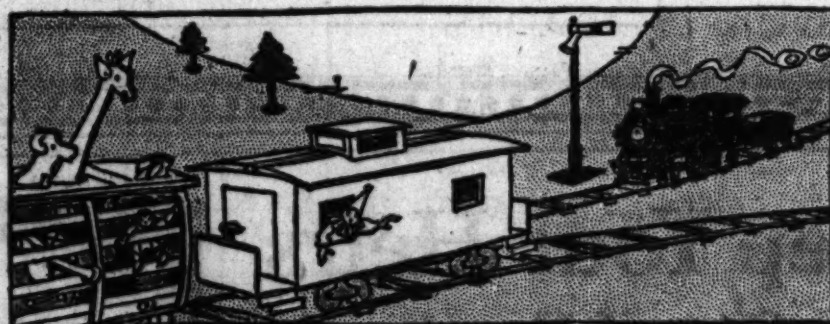

New York, March 24.—Bobbed hair is a sure means for causing baldness, and it won't be many years before the world is filled with bald headed women. Joseph Byrne, editor of a beauty magazine, said in addressing the annual convention of the American Master Hair Dressers' association today.

Milliners, he explained, to conform to present day hair style, have been obliged to make head bands exceedingly tight to keep the hair on, resulting in the death of the hair. Mr. Byrne asserted that girls of the present generation would be bald before they reached maturity.

On the other hand, Mrs. S. T. Burgess of Madison, Wis., declared that bobbing of hair was one of the greatest benefits the modern woman enjoys.

FIVE EX-POSTAL CLERKS INDICTED. Five former postal clerks were indicted by the federal grand jury here yesterday, all charged with thefts from the Chicago post office. John Trivette, who confessed stealing $20,000 worth of diamonds from the mail ten days ago, also was named in a true bill.

My BOOKHOUSE

"I Think I Can! I Think I Can!"

And the Little Engine did. He puffed and chugged and tugged and pulled the little train of cars over the mountain so that the children might have their Christmas toys. But first he thought he could.

Every child who owns My BOOK HOUSE knows and loves the story of "The Little Engine that Could". He loves the generosity, courage and perseverance of the Little Engine. He sees the value of these qualities and most important of all he applies them to his problems.

Think what it means to the child to meet any obstacle with the confidence and persistence learned from this story. Think what it means for him to be able to say with the Little Engine, "I thought I could!"

My BOOK HOUSE is different from other children's books. It presents reading of a high literary standard which children will enjoy and which will strengthen and build character. It gives children the very best stories and poems obtainable, selected from a wide range of sources by one who is "a writer, an educator, and herself a mother." Six volumes, 2560 pages. DOGS THAT BIT TEACHER GIVEN 10 DAYS DELAY

The tale of two dogs that attacked and seriously injured Miss Marian Goodman, physical instructor at New Trier High school, near the Evanston Community Golf club Sunday night, will not be determined for ten days. The case was continued yesterday when, their master, John C. Miller, was arraigned for owning vicious dogs.

"I am willing that my dogs be shot, but I do not think they are vicious," Miller said. "They were tied up. Some colored boys began to torment them by throwing sticks and stones, and the dogs broke away."

The dogs are being held in the basement of the clubhouse pending the outcome of the hearing. Miss Goodman's condition was reported improved at Evanston hospital last night.

WILBUR REACHES CAPITAL; TAKES NAVY COMMAND

Washington, D. C., March 24.—Curly D. Wilbur, of California, new secretary of the navy, arrived in Washington today, conferred with President Coolidge, and then was installed as his desk at the navy department.

"I have no preconceived ideas as to naval policies," the secretary said. "I am taking it for granted that the naval establishment is well organized and will be able to run along while I pick up the threads."

SOUTH DAKOTA DECIDES TODAY ON HIRAM, CAL

G. O. P. Contests Feature of State Primary.

Sioux Falls, S. D., March 24.—[By Associated Press.]—Political winds had quieted ominously tonight as voters of South Dakota prepared to go to the polls tomorrow to express their presidential preferences and nominate state office candidates.

Outstanding contests in the state-wide primary as viewed by the folks at home are the Coolidge-Johnson presidential indorsement tussle and the United States senatorial nomination fight, all on the Republican ticket.

It will be the second time in eight days that President Coolidge has opposed Senator Hiram Johnson of California for the Republican preference, as they met last week in the North Dakota primary, with the President returned winner.

Senatorial Fight Hot.
Exceeding in local interest is the senatorial nomination fray in the Republican field, involving Senator Thomas Sterling and Gov. W. H. McMaster, the latter bearing the indorsement of the party's state proposal convention in December.

On the Democratic ticket, too, there are presidential and senatorial contests. William G. McAdoo is seeking the presidential indorsement in opposition to a faction desirous of sending an unindorsed delegation to the party's national convention.

U. S. G. Cherry of Sioux Falls, convention indorsed, and Mark B. Bates of Leitcher are the Democratic senatorial aspirants. Bates is backed by the Democratic minority, and also has the support of the farmer-labor minority.

Full Farmer-Labor Slate.
The farmer-labor party has a full slate of state candidates in the field, headed by Tom Ayres of Mitchell for United States senator, and also has filed national convention delegate candidates. This majority slate is opposed by a minority list of candidates, corresponding to the Democratic minority, the combined minorities being known as the "fusion" ticket.

Gov. McMaster's espousal of the cause of Senator Johnson and the latter's reciprocal indorsement of the governor have teamed the candidates into McMaster-Johnson and Sterling-Coolidge combinations as the latter also have exchanged indorsements.

There has been nothing, however, to indicate that one "partner" in either team could carry the other to victory or defeat, and while Johnson workers have declared this "teaming" of great importance in measuring the Californian's prospects of success, several prominent McMaster supporters predicted today that the governor's personal organization would carry him ahead of Johnson.

HEARST SEEKING NOMINATION, VIEW IN McADOO CAMP

New York, March 24.—[Special.]—Aspirations of William Randolph Hearst for the Democratic nomination for President were disclosed today by David Ladd Rockwell of Ohio, national campaign manager for William G. McAdoo, and Breckenridge Long, leader of the McAdoo forces in Missouri. According to Mr. Rockwell, the fight in the primary election in South Dakota tomorrow will be between a McAdoo delegation and an unindorsed delegation which is really for Hearst. Reed a "Stalking Horse."
Mr. Long declared United States Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, who was beaten in the county convention in that state, was merely a "stalking horse" for Mr. Hearst. He added that he had been informed that George Brennan of Chicago, Illinois Democratic leader, and Mayor William E. Dever were committed to Hearst, and had agreed to turn to him the entire Illinois delegation or as many of the delegates as were in their power.
Mr. Long's assertion came with surprise, because it had been generally believed here that Mr. Brennan was favorable to the nomination of Gov. Smith of New York. Smith refused to enter the Illinois primary and it was reported one reason was the expectation that Mr. Brennan, known to be on friendly terms with Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany, would give Smith the support of the unindorsed Illinois delegates at the proper time.

Claims Illinois Delegates.
Mr. Rockwell declared there would be some McAdoo delegates elected in Illinois and that the election of even two would be a gain, as none could have been hoped for if Mr. Brennan had been permitted to go ahead with his arrangement for an unindorsed delegation without opposition.
He said a similar situation existed in Ohio, where the contest is between candidates for delegates pledged to Mr. McAdoo and former Gov. James M. Cox, Democratic nominee for President in 1920. "Frankly," Mr. Rockwell said, "we look upon Gov. Cox's candidacy as fostered by the bosses of Ohio for the purpose of trading in the convention."

FOUND HANGING IN BARN.
The body of Walter Watkins, 55 years old, was found hanging from a rafter in a barn in the rear of his home, in Lyons, Ill., yesterday.
Frank Kaster, 34, of 2300 East 92d street, was found dead yesterday in a garage at 9142 Mackinac avenue. The South Chicago police arrested William A. Gaddin, 3018 East 91st street, whose wife, Helen, is a cashier in a restaurant where the dead man was a waiter. Gaddin said Kaster had insulted his wife and that a fight followed.

Have You Obtained a Copy of This Magazine?

IF YOU have not a copy of this new Ontra Chicago magazine, with its historic 1854 cover in color, we suggest that you secure one at the earliest opportunity at any of the Ontra Cafeterias listed below.

The beautiful oil painting, especially made for this publication, portrays the old Lake View House opened in Chicago on July 4, 1854, at the northwest corner of Grace Street and Sheridan Road.

This hostelry, built in the vicinity of the lake by James Reese and Elisha Huntley was undoubtedly the first in Uptown Chicago.

Here Stephen A. Douglas and his bride spent the summer of 1856 and Chicago fire refugees found shelter in 1871. The Lake View House was torn down in 1890.

This magazine contains many artistic photographs of various Chicago places and several items of special local interest, including a portion devoted to the remarkable growth of Uptown Chicago, showing an exceptional aeroplane view of an important part of this "city within a city."

A biographic sketch of Miss Mary L. Dutton, owner of the Ontra Cafeterias, is charmingly told by Clara Ingram Judson, home economics expert. Several of Miss Dutton's favorite recipes appear in this issue.

Enough copies of the April Ontra Chicago magazine are now off the press, making it possible we believe, to meet all requests made this week. Miss Dutton invites you to call for your copy today, if convenient.

THE PRESIDENT MUST ACT NOW.

President Coolidge has been restrained and judicial long enough, too long. From now on delay will be regarded as indifference which may not be fatal to his prospects of nomination but which may lose the election.

The President found a cabinet for which he had no responsibility. He followed precedent, as he was expected to do, and as the successor of Mr. Harding he accepted the government as he found it and the policies of his predecessor as they had been announced.

He was not responsible for the secretaries, but he is responsible for their continuance in office when reasons for their dismissal have been disclosed. With regard to Attorney General Daugherty such reasons have been revealed.

Criminals have not been proved against the attorney general and he is entitled to his defense without prejudice, but improprieties have been proved and admitted and conditions have been revealed which remove Mr. Daugherty from the reach of confidence. His speculations in oil stocks unfitted him to be the legal adviser of state departments. If he could not and cannot see the impropriety of this he merely proves himself blind to the code which should govern his office.

His associations were discreditable and dangerous. He was the intimate friend of men and women who were seeking and evidently getting profits corruptly from the government. If he was imposed upon he was unfit to be attorney general.

Daugherty, certainly the least culpable of all the officials mentioned in the scandals, so far as any evidence has been introduced, recognized that he was an embarrassment to the administration. Mr. Coolidge did not ask for his resignation but he accepted it.

Daugherty is not entitled to the presumptions which favored Daugherty. If the witnesses were credible and did not for the most part come out of the intrigue of the Washington political underworld the case would be complete. We take such testimony with many reservations and must, but there is enough which cannot be put aside or explained to require that Daugherty step out and at once.

Whatever these people testifying were they were at least Daugherty's associates and subordinates. Jesse Smith was his intimate. He lived with the man. Smith was the husband and after divorce the confidential friend of Rosie Simson. Means was the employee of Burns under Daugherty. The chain of associations is apparent all through the testimony of these and others.

The things to the scandal of the nation were done, whether in the manner described and by the persons named or not. Here are accomplished facts and a revealed gang of conspirators who were making money in Washington.

The people, the fairest of them, cannot have any confidence in Mr. Daugherty. Mr. Coolidge is untainted. He is conspicuously free from the splash of oil and other scandal. We think fair minded people have not wanted him to take snap judgment and commit his own political advantage by demanding the heads of men as soon as they were mentioned in testimony. It may have required some slowness of purpose to remain judicially poised when there was so much clamor.

Up to a certain point the President might win confidence for himself and later for the party which he will probably lead in the campaign by proving that his character was above popular agitation. That point has been passed.

If Mr. Coolidge were involved only to the extent of his own political fortunes he might ask to be exempted from advice as to his procedure. But a great deal more than Mr. Coolidge's future is at stake. There is the welfare of the country. We cannot view without apprehension the possibility of a widely radical third party running with the torch of burning oil and turning the resentment of the people into political folly.

Out of such witness might come the severest test the country's government ever met, an election thrown into the house of representatives and that deflected with passions everywhere.

The nation has been at the edge of this danger before. The Hayes-Tilden controversy is not a parallel except in that it caused the wildest parties to withdraw from the danger they saw.

Mr. Coolidge must be asked to prove to the people that he is sensitive to the impact of the conditions revealed. He must require Mr. Daugherty to face the remainder of the investigation as a private citizen. No injustice will result to him from that. The President cannot carry the load further, with damage to himself and to the party, and it may be a damage which cannot be remedied.

PATRIOT, NOT PACIFIST.
The fourth volume of the "Memoirs of the Harvard Dead in the War Against Germany" is even more previous than any one of the previous volumes. The youth of the men commemorated in this volume appears in the portraits which adorn it. It is the sense of responsibility in the youth of the day which appears in the remark of one of these heroes to his father, who was expressing the natural paternal wish that he might go instead of his son. The son's reply was, "I guess our generation has got to take care of this."

"This volume brings out again the identity of the Harvard spirit in the civil war, the war with Spain, and the world war. In all three wars it was a spirit which combined intense love of country with the passion for service. This same spirit reappears today in the throngs of American high school graduates and college youth who are resorting voluntarily to the summer camps for military training maintained by the government of the United States. The picked youth of today propose to be ready for intelligent service in the next war in spite of what some of the soldiers returning from the battlefields of France have told them about the horrors and abominations of modern war."

CHARLES W. ELIOT,
President Emeritus of Harvard.

PROHIBITION'S FAILURES.
The new Turks, with their capital at Ankara instead of Constantinople, have abolished the caliphate, taken the women out of the harem and given them the right to be people, and now they have abolished prohibition of alcoholic drinks and permit the use of beer, wine, and spirits.

The United States, Finland, and the Canadian Province of Ontario are the only countries we know which, having experimented with absolute prohibition, have retained it.

Finland contains about as much opposition to it as exists in the United States, and liberal citizens of Ontario believe that soon their province will follow the example of Manitoba and other provinces which were dry and abandoned unworkable prohibition for the Quebec system of control.

Norway had a miserable experience with prohibition. It first tried an unreasonable method of regulation and control, and abandoned it for complete prohibition. The first injurious consequence was economic, was not an inherent defect in prohibition itself, but it was tough on the Norwegian fisheries. Spain, which could not sell wine to Norway, decided not to buy fish from Norway. The two countries had traded in wine and fish.

The inherent defect was revealed when the Norwegians became bootleggers, just as the Americans are bootleggers and patronizers of bootleggers, and with the economic, moral and fiscal consequences all bad, Norway turned in its tracks. The physical consequences also had been bad.

Sweden, which was one of the first countries to recognize that the use of alcohol required control and regulation, had been going smoothly on a sane system of regulation, while Norway was going badly on an insane one of prohibition. The Swedes are rationed to an amount of spirits which would satisfy any one but a consistent drunkard, and have their malt and wine. The reformers who are not bigots are satisfied with results. These northern countries of long winter nights and severe cold have temptations to hard drinking which may be escaped in more moderate climates, but the Swedes used tolerance and sanity in meeting the problem, and reasonable men concede that the compromises safeguarded both the welfare of the state and the rights of the individual.

Russia had a drink problem. Ivan's idea of happiness was to drink spirits just as rapidly as he could pour drinks into himself and then become unconscious. If he were as a log alongside a roadside he had attained his end. Some people think the czar made the revolution by keeping Ivan sober and sensitive to his injuries. The Soviets gradually allowed alcohol in various forms back in. The peasants were making it anyway, and the Soviets were not having much success in building them in any particular, although great success in starving millions of them.

Absolute prohibition is a fanatic delusion of human nature and of individual rights. It fails everywhere except where it represents the genuine will of the people. Then it is not needed. Here it has increased crime, has taken all proper government control away, has not stopped drinking, and has weakened respect for government, just as a tyranny always will.

DEMOCRATS WANT SMALL.
We doubt that the Republican national ticket will be altogether a whitewash or a prairie fire in Illinois this year. It probably will be glad to escape local imbecilities. If Small is nominated by the Republicans it will have one. Small will be a heavy truckload of trouble stabled in the mud.

Four years ago when the Republican national ticket tore through the state, 177,332 Republicans registered their disgust for the head of the state ticket. Small's plurality was $74,483 less than Harding's.

In a close race that would beat him. It would elect a Democrat. Even if the race were not close and if Small barely got by, the Democrats in many close counties will be glad that the Republicans nominated Small. The Republican state handicap will give the Democrats the county offices in these counties and the Republicans can spend four years on the curbstone. Such considerations appeal to some politicians when nothing else does.

The Other Side

THEIR HOPELESS MISSION.
(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

The same day that saw a move made in the Canadian parliament to enlist the dominion government in an effort to halt Chicago's illegal diversion of water from Lake Michigan saw also a delegation of Chicago men in this city endeavoring to beguile Cleveland into an attitude of indifference toward such diversion. Wide awake men, these Canadians. Wasted, the railroad fare paid by the itinerant Chicagoans.

Four bills have been introduced in the national house by different Illinois members designed to legalize Chicago's unlawful seizure of water that belongs to the United States and Canada jointly. They embody the impossible proposal that went under the name of the McCormick bill in the last congress, which measure the senator from Illinois has had the good sense not to reintroduce in this congress. Those who formerly shouted for the McCormick bill have now transferred their affections unimpaired to the Hull, the Madden, the Michelson, or the Rainey bill. Differing in detail, they are designed to accomplish the same end—to permit Chicago to use international water, to lower the lake levels, to rob Niagara and the St. Lawrence of their maximum power possibilities, in order to simplify her own sewage problem and permit her to develop cheap power.

To ask Cleveland or any other lake city to cease opposing such a policy on Chicago's part is like asking a robber's victim to forgive the robber, forget the robbery, and to stand ready to hand over a well filled purse to the same offender periodically thereafter without complaint.

We have expressed the opinion before that it is hopeless to try for Canadian cooperation on the St. Lawrence as long as the government at Washington even appears to condone Chicago's continued theft of lake water. No real friend of this international waterway will lend an ounce of support to one of these drainage diversion bills.

"No, but my brother does, and I'm wearing his hat."

SPASMS AND EPILEPSY.

WHEN a child has a spasm the family is thrown into a panic. This panic is not justified. The rule, the exceptions to which are few, is that the child will be out of the spasm in a few minutes. A hot mustard foot bath, a cold cloth on the head, and a few minutes of quiet, and the baby will be sleeping. A dose of antipyrine to bring the fever down and an enema or a quick purge, and, in a few hours, the child is fairly comfortable.

But the parents' worry does not stop at that point. Many children's diseases begin with convulsions, every now and then. The mother—the father is apt to be thinking of other matters—wants to know whether the spasm means an approaching attack of scarlet fever, or something worse. Nor does her worry stop when the nature of the after-coming illness has been established. Many hundred mothers write me asking whether their children, who have had one or more attacks of convulsions, are liable to develop into epileptics. It has not been easy to answer this question.

In the last forty years about ten physicians have tried to find the answer to that question. They have studied many hundreds of cases and the opinions they have arrived at have been about as rankly variant as could be imagined. Some of the investigators would answer the question categorically, "Yes"; others just as emphatically, "No."

Dr. Patrick and Levy have just published the details of an investigation which they made to find the answer. They inquired closely of 500 epileptics and their families as to spasms in childhood. Then they went to three better babies clinics—one urban and two rural—located under the auspices of the Illinois health department, and there studied the relation of spasms in childhood to epilepsy in later life, in 753 children and their families.

The answer for the question which they investigated established by it between "yes" and "no." First they found that the child that has spasms had a greater tendency to develop epilepsy in later life than the average. The statement that if the child with the tendency to spasms does not develop epilepsy by a certain age, he will escape, they do not find to be true. Not all babies that have spasms develop into epileptics. According to the law of averages, however, that has spasms will not have epilepsy. Babies that had teething spasms between 11 and 13 months of age were especially liable to escape. So were babies that had other transient causes, such as onset of contagion.

On the other hand, factors that increased the chance of epilepsy were:

STAB AND SHOOT HUSBAND AS HE FIGHTS RIVAL, 60

Stabbed and shot while pummeling the man whom he accuses as a bride stealer, Edward Martin of 2717 Indiana avenue stumbled into the South Chicago police station last night, dazed weakly for a moment, and then collapsed in a bloodstained heap before the complaint desk.

"John Garrity did it," he mumbled, naming his 60 year old rival.

While Martin was being rushed to the South Chicago hospital, where physicians reported his condition as critical, Sergts. Baer and Fitzgerald hurried to 8335 Exchange avenue. There they arrested Garrity, retired police operator, and Mrs. Rosalie Martin, wife of less than a month.

Wife Takes Blame.

Mrs. Martin—34 years old, black haired, and, according to those who know her, of Spanish extraction—preceeded to stammer the sergeant's by taking the blame for her husband's condition.

"I shot him," she said, calmly. "Martin's crazy. He says John Garrity did it. Why, Martin had him down on the floor, so he couldn't shoot."

Program of Vengeance.

The battle in the Garrity parlor was one incident in the program of vengeance started by Martin after his wedding, one month ago today. He has already started a $50,000 suit, charging the white haired operator with alienating his wife's affections, and had information with federal authorities naming Garrity as a bootlegger.

Martin and the girl he married were both boarders at the Exchange avenue address. On their wedding night their landlord gave them a party. It broke up, Martin claims, when he found Garrity kissing the bride.

In the fight which followed Martin was pitched out to the sidewalk. His wife then refused to live with him. She was locked up at the Hyde Park station. Garrity's black eye became so painful that the police took him to South Chicago hospital for treatment.

BROADCASTERS TO REFUSE UNION DEMAND FOR PAY

Charges that the demand of the Chicago Musicians' union for $3 for three hours or less for radio engagements was inspired by members of the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers were made in an interview given out last night in New York by Paul Klugh, executive chairman of the National Association of Broadcasters.

Mr. Klugh, who has been conferring in New York for several days with E. F. McDonald of Chicago, president of the association, declared Chicago stations have no intention of complying with the union's demands, "even though it means throwing union music out of hotels."

The question will come up before the next convention of the musicians.

AUTOIST KILLS CHILD; LEAVES BODY ON STREET

Two more names—those of a little girl and of a man—were added yesterday to the county's list of automobile deaths, which now number 110 since Jan. 1.

Stella Benofski, 1802 West North-west, was killed by a "vampire" touring car at Ashland and Wabasha avenues. The child ran into the rear end of a truck, driven by John Marshall, 4747 South Hermitage, and was crushed by the touring car.

Vampire Driver Speeds Away. The "vampire" driver drove away at a high rate of speed and escaped before witnesses could obtain his license number.

The truck driver lifted the child, whom he thought still was living, and rushed her to St. Elizabeth's hospital. There it was said the girl had died instantly.

Death May Come Inquiry. The other victim was Valery Tlatil, 3204 North Citybourn avenue, whose death probably will cause an inquiry as to why a man injured in an automobile accident and pronounced by a physician to be suffering from a fracture of the skull, was refused admission to the county hospital. Tlatil was riding in the side car of a motorcycle driven by James Suoth of the same address at about 11 o'clock Saturday night.

Autoist Charged with Assault. Elsie Pope, 8, 925 Jackson avenue, Evanston, was injured, perhaps fatally, when she was struck by an automobile driven by Thomas Wall, 333 Oakton street, Evanston, who was arrested and charged with a deadly assault. The girl was taken to St. Francis' hospital.

Although recommending that charges of drunken driving be laid against Joseph Tlatil, a coroner's jury yesterday exonerated him of blame for the accident in which his mother, Mrs. Mary Tlatil, was fatally injured. Tlatil, a meat packer, lives at 6701 West 23d street, Cicero. The automobile in which he and his family were riding crashed into a parked automobile on Sunday.

Autoist Charged with Assault. Elsie Pope, 8, 925 Jackson avenue, Evanston, was injured, perhaps fatally, when she was struck by an automobile driven by Thomas Wall, 333 Oakton street, Evanston, who was arrested and charged with a deadly assault. The girl was taken to St. Francis' hospital.

Although recommending that charges of drunken driving be laid against Joseph Tlatil, a coroner's jury yesterday exonerated him of blame for the accident in which his mother, Mrs. Mary Tlatil, was fatally injured. Tlatil, a meat packer, lives at 6701 West 23d street, Cicero. The automobile in which he and his family were riding crashed into a parked automobile on Sunday.

JAPAN HINTS TO RUSSIA TO KEEP HAND OFF CHINA

LONDON, March 24.—A Central News dispatch from Tokyo says the Japanese minister of war has announced receipt of official advice from Russia to the effect that the soviet government is threatening to mobilize its army.

Japan is not preparing to act at the present, the Central News says, "but should Russia proceed with her war-like intention, Japan will join other powers in formally protesting and appealing for observance of the Washington pact, and in maintaining the integrity of jeopardized Chinese territory."

Consular Report Russian Moves. TOKIO, March 24.—(By Associated Press.)—Sumner of the movement of Russian soviet troops into the Dauria

The reports, transmitted in advices from the consul at Manchuria, are to the effect that two soviet regiments have been moved down into the Dauria region of Transbaikalia province, below Chita, threatening the Chinese Eastern railway. The consul gives the reports a certain amount of credence.

FLOG GIRLS AT FEEBLE MINDED HOME, CHARGE

Judge Orders Dixon Hospital Chief Into Court.

Children and young women at the State Hospital for the Feeble Minded at Dixon, Ill., an institution controlled by appointees of Gov. Len Small, have been subjected to violent floggings and assaults by attendants, according to testimony given before Superior Judge Joseph B. David yesterday.

After hearing the story of a 17 year old girl inmate of the asylum Judge David, declaring himself astounded that such conditions could exist, ordered Dr. Warren G. Murray, superintendent, to produce in court this morning four attendants named by the girl. He also ordered the presence of seven girl inmates who were said by the witness to have been severely beaten.

Testifies at Writ Hearing.
The testimony was given by Meddie Fields, a colored girl, at a habeas corpus hearing brought by her mother, Anna Fields, 84 East 31st street. The girl said women and children suffering from a social disease had been kept in the same cottages, and ate from the same dishes with unaffected inmates. The witness herself, according to a physician's report, contracted the disease, which now is in an active stage, and highly infective. How she was infected no one could be sure, Judge David remarked, for she has been under state institutional care since she was eleven years old. The judge asked the girl if she ever had been scooped by men attaches at the Dixon hospital.

Charge Against Attendants.
"I haven't," she said, "but I know the attendants tried to take advantage of some of the girls."
"It is astonishing and revolting that such conditions can exist in any institution, but it is even more so to

LEGION NOTES

John F. Quinn, national commander of the American Legion, will be principal speaker at the Tenth district conference of the American Legion and Auxiliary of the Department of Indiana, which will be held in the Memorial Community Building auditorium at Whiting, Ind., Saturday, March 29, at 7:30 p. m.

With thirty-eight new members added to the roster, Advertising Men's post No. 38, American Legion, became Chicago's largest Legion post, and fourth in the state. The membership now totals 468. It was announced yesterday at the regular weekly luncheon of the post in Hotel Sherman. Capt. Harry E. Rouffs, vocational counselor, addressed the post at this meeting and analyzed several volunteers among the new members. Ed Milroy, Irish comedian, told Celtic yarns.

Dinner, meeting, and entertainment will be the program of Aviation post tonight at the Army and Navy club, 1650 Lake Shore drive. A message of good-will from the post will be sent to Maj. Martin and his around the world flyers.

Ravenswood post, No. 149, American Legion, will be entertained by the White Park Community band in Chase Park hall, Ashland and Leland avenues, this evening.

have them charged against an institution of the state," Judge David exclaimed.

He ordered that the girl be examined by physicians, and then announced he would summon the officials of the institution to "dig down to the root of this awful affair."

The presence of the Fields girl in a home for mental misfits was also unaccounted for. She told how she had been shunted about in three state institutions, all under Gov. Small's general supervision, finally landing in Dixon.

Beaten and Kicked.

Then the girl described an incident on March 5, when seven girls were taken in a room, one at a time, and beaten and kicked by four women attendants, she testified.
When her turn came, she said, she was knocked to the floor, and one attendant stood on her arm while the others rained blows upon her. A bruised eye and other marks on the girl bore witness to the punishment she had received.

MESSRS. DRUGGAN AND LAKE QUIT GOLF; SURRENDER

Instead of bouncing bombs off the back steps of homes of prohibition agents, Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake, millionaire beer runners, have been going at Miami, Fla., they revealed yesterday, after they had surrendered to United States Marshal Robert R. Levy at the federal building.

The appearance of the men, inseparable companions since the days when they were only lieutenants to "Paddy the Bear," in enterprises of the Valley gang, was unaltered.

Neither of them would discuss the federal charges, from which they have been fugitives for six months, but both took occasion to ridicule "sensational revelations" made by Prohibition Agent Brice F. Armstrong, in which the latter obtained warrants naming Druggan as the man who placed a bomb on his back porch ten days ago.

Ready with Alibis.

Both men said they were prepared to prove a complete alibi in the Armstrong bombing case.

Lake is named in two informations in connection with alleged liquor law violations at the Little Bohemia cafe, 1722 South Loomis street, and in an indictment against the Illinois Beer-age company. He gave bond of $1,000 in each of the cabinet cases and $2,500 in the brewery case. Druggan's bonds totaled $6,000; $5,000 for an indictment of the Standard Products brewery and $1,000 in one of Lake's Little Bohemia cases.

Armstrong Back from East.

A few hours before Druggan and Lake surrendered, Armstrong returned to Chicago from Washington, where he went on a mysterious mission, presumably to unfold to Prohibition Commissioner Roy A. Haynes detailed information as to the part prominent politicians play in the beer traffic in the Chicago territory.

Following a résumé of the attacks made by Armstrong during the last ten days Illinois prohibition Director Percy Owen issued a statement in which he included the following: "I hold a firm faith that the public will be reluctant to give credence to statements reflecting upon a department endeavoring in good faith to enforce the law, whether such statements have their genesis in mischievous misinformation on the one hand or studied misrepresentations on the other."

Try the New Way Of teeth cleaning

The way millions now employ

This is to urge you, once again, to try the new way of teeth cleaning. You see the results now wherever you look, in whiter, cleaner, safer teeth.

The use has now spread the world over. Millions of careful people, in every clime, enjoy its benefits. Those good results belong to you and yours. Learn how much they mean.

The war on film

Film is the teeth' great enemy—that viscous film you feel. No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats it, so much of it clings and stays. Soon it becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. That is why teeth lose their pearly luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

So tooth troubles constantly increased—became almost universal—under old ways of tooth brushing.

New ways found

Modern science has found ways to fight that film on teeth. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

Many careful tests have proved these methods effective. They do what must be done. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Leading dentists everywhere began to advise it. The results became known the world over. Now careful people of some 50 nations apply this method daily.

Two mistakes

Research also proved that old methods made two great mistakes. They reduced the alkalinity of the saliva, which is there to neutralize mouth acids. They reduced the starch digestant in saliva, which is there to digest starch deposits on teeth.

Pepsodent brings the opposite effects. It multiplies the alkalinity, multiplies the starch digestant. Thus it gives an increased power to these great tooth-protecting agents in the mouth.

To millions of homes these combined results are bringing a new dental era.

Multiplied beauty

One result is whiter teeth. And nothing else can add so much to beauty. But those whiter teeth mean cleaner, safer teeth.

Learn the benefits that Pepsodent can bring to you and yours. See and feel the quick, conspicuous effects. Then judge for yourself what is best.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

You will be amazed and delighted. Do this for your own sake. Cut out coupon now.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT]
Washington, D. DIFFER ON HARM OF VACCINES AND MEDICINE "ADS"

Rathbone and Kunz Can't Agree on Bill.

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)
Washington, D. C., March 24.—Representative Stanley Kunz [Dem., Ill.] served notice today at the hearing on the bill of Representative Rathbone [Rep., Ill.] for government censorship and regulation of bacterial vaccines, that he would offer an amendment for inclusion of patent medicines and patent medicine advertisements in the measure. The bill was introduced in the senate and house at the instance of Norman H. Haggood, acting for William R. Hearst.

Representative Rathbone said he had no thought of including patent medicines, and was not in favor of broadening the bill. Representative Kunz asserted that patent medicines, admittedly a source of greater danger to the general public than vaccines prescribed and administered by physicians, should certainly not be left out.

Rathbone Opposes Change.
"I am not representing any person or special interest," Mr. Kunz said. "My only interest is the interest of the public. Some serums are bad, some to be regulated of one let the other be regulated also."

"If you feel that way about it," said Representative Rathbone, "introduce another bill."

"Not at all," Representative Kunz replied. "This bill is for the public benefit to correct certain alleged evils, the worst of which it certainly appears result from patent medicines and patent medicine advertisements."

Mr. Kunz appealed to Dr. Henry P. Craig of Washington, D. C., who responded that "patent medicines are the worst of all."

Patent Medicines Denounced.
Dr. Henry H. Park, director of the hygienic laboratory of the city of New York, and Dr. A. H. Reed of Cincinnati, O., said they appeared for the Rathbone bill in the belief that it would "clinch" the authority of the government in certain respects, but both were opposed to any limitation on the right of physicians to prescribe vaccines which they might believe to be beneficial.

Both physicians agreed with Dr. Craig that comparatively few misleading advertisements of vaccines ever appeared, while patent medicine advertisements appearing in the newspapers and read by the general public are frequently not only misleading, but dangerous in the extreme.

COUNTY BOARD STUDIES A NEW PLAN FOR ROADS

BY J. L. JENKINS.

Plans for a new and practical highway system to serve the Chicago territory, as opposed to Gov. Small's $100,000,000 by-road improvement scheme, were launched yesterday by Cook county authorities.

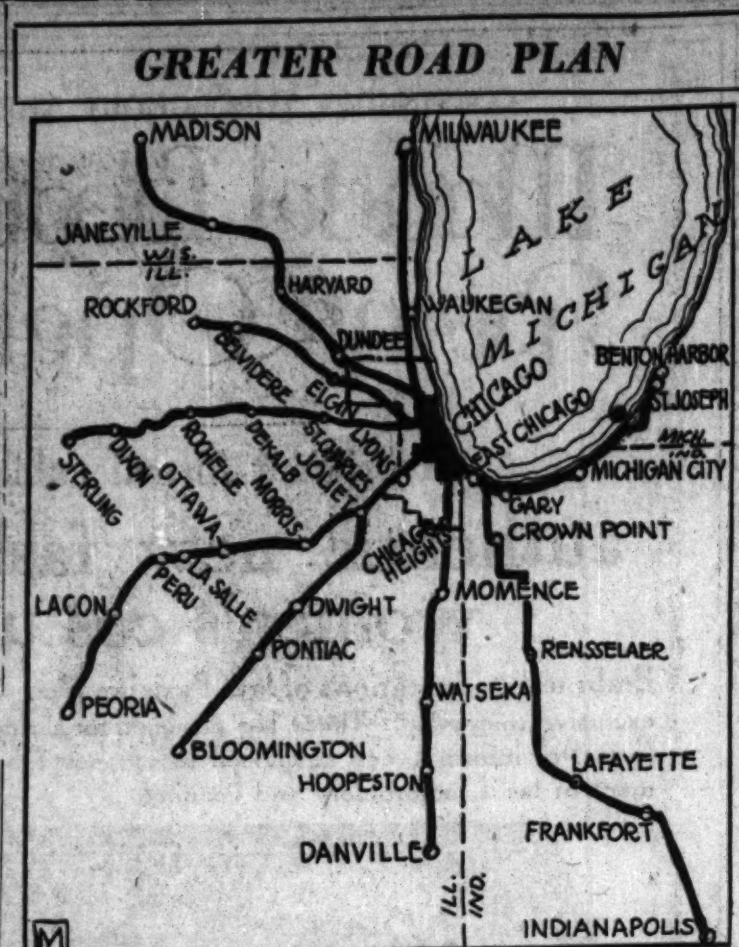

In a resolution, introduced by Commissioner Frank Wilson and approved by the county board, the road and bridge committee was authorized to make an investigation of the Small bond issue plan as it affects terminal traffic. It was also asked to consider a comprehensive plan for doubling the width of pavements on the main traffic channels leading from Chicago to other large cities in the state and neighboring states and to recommend the necessary legislation.

Sponsors of the proposal hope that it can be whipped into shape before the Small bond issue is considered by Illinois voters.

County System Complete.

In his resolution Commissioner Wilson pointed out that the county bond issue system of highways, which rank first in the United States in both mileage and transport facilities, has been practically completed and that it is now necessary to prepare for wider pavements or additional roads to take care of the traffic centering in Chicago.

"I have been advised," he said, "that Small's bond issue proposal—which is so vital to the financial interests of all Chicago automobile owners and voters—does not give Cook county its proper share of roads. It is said, too, that even if the issue is approved and the roads built they will not relieve the serious congestion which is tying up our highway traffic and causing more economic loss each year. Until

These 18 foot concrete arteries will be doubled in width to care for increasing state traffic, if the new highway plan submitted to the Cook county board yesterday is followed. Their improvement, rather than the building of secondary roads under the Small $100,000,000 bond issue plan, is considered vital by Chicago authorities.

now Cook county has built practically all of its own roads, despite all claims to the contrary.

"Lake street is cited as about the only improvement made by the state under the present administration."

The Cook county commissioners agree that the roads already built and in use are the logical traffic channels for northern Illinois and the great Chicago terminal. Such roads as Roosevelt road, Ogden avenue, the Milwaukee-Waukegan road from Chicago to Milwaukee; Roosevelt road and the Lincoln highway from Chicago to the Mississippi river; Ogden avenue and its connections with the Illinois highway from Chicago through Joliet and Bloomington to Springfield; the Dixie highway from Chicago to Danville; Indianapolis avenue and the Jackson highway from Chicago to Indianapolis; and the same route with the Duane highway and Michigan route 11 to St. Joseph.

Suggestions submitted to the board, accompanying the Wilson resolution, point to these main traffic arteries as the roads in vital need of improvement. They are paved with eighteen foot concrete now—too narrow, transportation experts declare, for the traffic they are called upon to serve even in the winter season.

Two General Plans.

Pavements at least thirty-six feet wide are needed on these main roads, according to the official suggestions.

The road and bridge committee has been asked to consider the possibility and advisability of two general plans for the relief of congestion. The first proposes doubling the pavement width on such main arteries as Grant highway from Chicago to Rockford; Higgins road and connections from Chicago through Duane, Harvard, and Janesville to Madison, Wis.; the Milwaukee-Waukegan road from Chicago to Milwaukee; Roosevelt road and the Lincoln highway from Chicago to the Mississippi river; Ogden avenue and its connections with the Illinois highway from Chicago through Joliet and Bloomington to Springfield; the Dixie highway from Chicago to Danville; Indianapolis avenue and the Jackson highway from Chicago to Indianapolis; and the same route with the Duane highway and Michigan route 11 to St. Joseph.

The second proposes the building of parallel roads along these main traffic channels to serve the same territory. These roads, say backers of the plan, are more important to the welfare of all Illinois traffic than the local roads proposed for improvement under the Small bond issue plan.

What State Plan Provides.

The state plan, as outlined in the latest map showing the new bond issue roads proposed for Chicago and Cook county, shows only five $100,000,000 roads actually touching the Chicago terminal. They include the Higgins and Algonquin roads, the former already constructed and highly congested; a Sheridan road feeder in Niles and Northfield townships; North avenue leading west to the county line; 23d street leading west to the county line, and Cicero avenue.

GILLETT REJECTS RESOLUTION CENSURE

Speaker Takes Floor Defends Boston

Washington, D. C., Mar. 24.—Speaker Gillett's remarks in the House today, during a recent session, stirred up a heated debate today in the House which the speaker laid aside and took the floor to defend.

The discussion was precipitated by Representative Treadway (Mass.), who offered a resolution censuring Senator Caraway (Tenn.) for attacking the speaker on the floor Saturday.

Objects to Remark.

Only a handful of House members were on the floor when Representative Treadway brought up the question. He objected particularly to Caraway's remark that the speaker had never given any evidence that he knew what the rules were, and had any respect for them.

Mr. Caraway had taken an exception to Mr. Gillett's "accusation" references to the speaker's Boston speech. The Arkansas senator also said the House had to the lowest point in its history.

Mr. Treadway withdrew his motion at the speaker's request, and the House began its session.

Speaker Gillett told the House he would interpose no objection to the House's acting on any resolution questioning his right to the speaker's office.

He explained, as did Mr. Treadway, that the resolution offered today was drafted and presented without knowledge.

Representative Wingo (Dem., Ill.) said, before the speaker began his address, that Mr. Gillett in his address had violated the spirit of the House rules, and in defiance of action Mr. Gillett said certain cratic members, including Mr. Caraway, in the last presidential campaign, made remarks about the senate.

GILLETT REJECTS RESOLUTION TO CENSURE SOLON

Speaker Takes Floor and Defends Boston Talk.

Washington, D. C., March 24.—Speaker Gillett's remarks about the senate, made during a recent address in Boston, stirred up a heated half-hour debate today in the house, during which the speaker laid aside his gavel and took the floor to defend himself.

The discussion was precipitated by Representative Treadway [Rep. Mass.], who offered a resolution criticizing Senator Caraway [Dem. Ark.] for attacking the speaker on the senate floor Saturday.

Only a handful of house members were on the floor when Representative Treadway brought up the question. He objected particularly to Senator Caraway's remark that the speaker "had never given any evidence that he knew what the rules were or that he had any respect for them."

Mr. Caraway had taken vigorous exception to Mr. Gillett's "school for scandal" reference to the senate in his Boston speech. The Arkansas senator also said the house had "sunk to the lowest point in its history as a legislative body."

Mr. Treadway withdrew his resolution at the speaker's request, and the latter, amid the cheers of his colleagues, stepped from the speaker's rostrum for a five minute speech.

Representative Wingo [Dem. Ark.] said, before the speaker began his address, that Mr. Gillett in his Boston address had violated the spirit of the house rules, and in defending his action Mr. Gillett said certain Democratic members, including Mr. Wingo, in the last presidential campaign had made remarks about the senate more uncomplimentary than he had used. "If there has been a violation of the rules of the senate in its conduct toward the house, and if the house should feel it its duty to take action upon that," he said, "I do not think the initiative should be taken by a member of the house from my own state or by a particular friend of mine."

Declaring he had not thought his Boston address would "excite so much discontent," the speaker said that if his whole address had been read by members of congress the reaction might have been somewhat different.

"At the same time," he continued, "I do not at all agree with the argument that I have violated either the rule itself or the spirit of it in saying what I did about the conduct of the senate. Our rules apply to our conduct here on the floor of the house, and nowhere else."

"And I venture to say that every member on the Democratic side knows that the gentleman from Arkansas himself in the last presidential campaign constantly made attacks upon the senate. They all attacked the conduct of the senate in its action on the peace treaty, and I suspect they went much farther than I did."

Wingo Takes Issue. Mr. Wingo interrupted to declare that, regardless of the "political heat in the last campaign," he never had attacked the integrity of a senator. "Neither have I," Mr. Gillett shot back.

SHIP QUIZ MAY COST BIG SUM, O'CONNOR SAYS

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.) Washington, D. C., March 24.—[Special.]—Expenditure of a large amount of public funds may be necessary to compile data requested of the shipping board and fleet corporation by the shipping board investigating committee of the house, Chairman T. V. O'Connor of the board indicated to the committee today.

The expense of complying with the request contained in one of the twenty-seven items alone would run between $300,000 and $400,000, he said. Because of the enormous number of employees on the board and corporation during the war, he said, it would require a large corps of investigators to prepare a list of the past personnel of the two organizations, together with the salaries paid, dates of dismissal or resignation, and reasons assigned therefor.

Suggests Extra Appropriation. The statement of Chairman O'Connor precipitated considerable discussion in the committee.

also in the committee. Chairman O'Connor suggested that if the committee insisted on obtaining the information as to past employees it request congress to grant the board a further appropriation to cover the cost.

In his statement Chairman O'Connor explained the assignment of duties to various members of the board. The present annual salary roll of the board and corporation is $3,351,080, covering 1,992 employees, he said. Twelve hundred and sixty-one vessels are owned by the board, of which 368 are in active operation.

Millions in Claims. Since July 1, 1921, Chairman O'Connor told the committee, claims amounting to $186,432,808.10 have been disposed of by the board, causing a total outlay of but $14,288,535.02. But $2,767,461.09 in claims remains unsettled at this time. A total of $365,432,414.48 is involved in suits against the board and corporation pending in various courts.

Various cases also are pending in the courts in which the shipping board or corporation is suing to recover an aggregate of $38,178,150.35, which does not include counter claims.

3 BRITISH AIRMEN START TODAY ON WORLD FLIGHT

LONDON, March 24.—[By the Associated Press.]—Three British airmen will head southward over the sea from Southampton tomorrow in an attempt to fly around the world "on their own." They expect to fly to Lyons, the first day and go from there to Brindisi.

Each of the trio belongs to the royal air force, but their effort to circle the earth before the Americans who left California last week turn the trick is purely a private venture. They are being supported financially by the corporations which built their plane and its engine, and the petrol manufacturers. They will, however, have at their disposal the facilities of the air force depots along the British trade routes and in the overseas possessions. The British airmen will use only one plane, compared with four which America has started around the world. It is an amphibian Vickers venture, fitted with a 450 horsepower motor.

Excess weight, authorities tell us, is largely due to excess starch in foods. White bread is overloaded with starch.

Jack Sprat Bread has an unusually low starch content, while rich in nourishment—protein—vitamines and mineral salts as nature provides them. It aids digestion and elimination, too, and has a delightful tang-like flavor.

POINCARÉ PLANS BIG PARLEYS TO RESTORE EUROPE

Hopes to Wind Up Series with World Meeting.

BY HENRY WALES.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
(Copyright, 1924, By The Chicago Tribune.)

PARIS, March 24.—Premier Poincaré plans a series of international conferences during the next six months in a desperate effort to save Europe by a final settlement of the reparations questions and the problem of French security. This Tribune learned from an authoritative source today.

The French premier's program, which was opened with Anglo-French conversations on the question of French security, will continue through several international and interallied meetings. He hopes, as a climax, to call together a world conference of the allies, Germany, the United States and neutral nations.

If this ambitious program is successful, M. Poincaré, as its guiding spirit, may emerge as the political Napoleon who settled the fate of Europe.

Seek Franco-Belgian Solidarity.

Comte de St. Aulaire, the French ambassador to London, conferred today with Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain on the latter's recent offer to France of a guarantee pact. If his reports on this conversation are favorable the next step will be a conference between M. Poincaré and Premier Ramsay MacDonald.

A Franco-Belgian meeting is scheduled to take place immediately after the completion of the Dawes' experts' report, which French official circles set for April 5.

Then will follow the three larger conferences which M. Poincaré hopes to convene. The first of these meetings is scheduled for the last week of May, following the French elections on May 11. This conference will include all the allies. It is planned to have the second conference attended by all the allies and Germany.

The allies, Germany, the United States, and the biggest neutral powers will participate in the third conference in an effort to make a complete and lasting settlement of Europe's tangled affairs.

It was officially announced today that Germany had paid on reparations account $2,122,500,000 up to Dec. 31, 1923.

MacDonald Seeks General Parley.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
LONDON, March 24.—The conversations between Great Britain and France on the subject of a pact guaranteeing French security were continued today, when the Comte de St. Aulaire called on Prime Minister MacDonald. The official statement says the subjects discussed were security and reparations.

It is likely that a meeting will be arranged between Mr. MacDonald and M. Poincaré as soon as the Dawes experts' report is presented. Mr. MacDonald's policy is opposed to sectional meetings between the two allies, and he hopes that as soon as the air is cleared by the experts he will be able to bring about a new allied conference at which the whole matter of reparations, French security, and the future relations of Europe will be discussed. A strong effort will be made to secure the participation of the United States.

ANDERSON, "DRY" OFFICIAL, ENTERS SING SING TODAY

New York, March 24.—William H. Anderson, former state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league of New York, convicted last January of forgery, today lost his long fight to keep out of jail.

At noon tomorrow, his counsel said, he will surrender himself to the sheriff in the Tombs. Within a few hours he will be on his way to Sing Sing prison, where he will be held pending a higher court decision on an appeal from his conviction.

The key that unlocked the prison gates to Anderson was a decision handed down by Supreme Court Justice Wagner, who denied the former league head's motion for a certificate of reasonable doubt. This automatically cancelled the $5,000 bond under which Anderson has been at liberty since his indictment by the grand jury last July. He was sentenced to a term of from one to two years in prison by Supreme Court Justice Tompkins Feb. 8.

The forgery charge on which Anderson was convicted was based on the testimony of O. Bertall Phillips, former fund solicitor for the league, that Anderson had ordered a falsification of the league books to conceal payment to him of $4,400, half of Phillips' commissions for the year 1920. Phillips charged that the league superintendent had compelled him to "split" all commissions in excess of $10,000 annually.

The trousseau—what dreams and hopes, what tremulous joys are tenderly folded into the piles of gossamer loveliness! Sheer chiffons, filmy laces and richest embroideries, with clusters of intricately wrought French ribbon flowers, and gleaming satin bows, make more beautiful than ever before the bridal finery.

One gorgeous negligee, of nasket all-over embroidery, floats two-tone chiffon from the shoulders to form the graceful train. A second two-piece model, has a quaint coat of net softly flaring a slip of net and organdie—sashed, embroidered and filet-trimmed.

Night gowns are made of delicately embroidered organdie, filet lace, grouped flowers and lustrous ribbon.

Costume slips of elaborately embroidered organdie with rows of filet lace make doubly handsome the gowns worn over them, while other dainties, delightful beyond description, make trousseau-ing here the most blissful of occupations.

Matched sets—of heavy crepe de chine adorned with filet, Irish, Venice laces—night dresses, costume slips, step-ins, step-in chemise; moderately priced.

Transact Your Business With a REALTOR!

Why The Chicago Real Estate Board (Oldest and Largest) Is the Most Influential on Earth

The Chicago Real Estate Board is the Active Representative of the Bar of Public Opinion of the Home-Owner and Taxpayer. It is the most insistent agency in securing Public Improvements. Always aggressive in the promotion of enterprise which will enhance the Industrial, Commercial, Residential and Social Values possessed by the City, it has attracted into its ranks representative men of other callings who are glad of the opportunity to assist in the forward-looking work of the Realtor through this Board—HERBERT UNDEEN NELSON, Executive Secretary, National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The tremendous dynamic force of a small group of Chicago Real Estate men, after organizing themselves, was further expressed in the founding of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and again when they formed the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards. Chicago thus assumed the co-operative leadership of the world in the ethical conduct of the Real Estate business.

A glance at the following list of its former Presidents reveals names familiar to all—men who have contributed much to the growth and development of our wonderful city.

Of the above list of former Presidents, those who are now living form the ADVISORY COUNCIL to President Henry G. Zander, in his administration as President of THE CHICAGO REAL ESTATE BOARD for the year 1924.

THE CHICAGO REAL ESTATE BOARD was the first body of real estate men ever formed for the purpose of improving methods and practices and to co-operate for mutual interest. This was back in 1883, when Chicago had a population of about one-half million.

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REAL ESTATE BOARDS originated here in Chicago twenty-four years later. On May 12, 1908, Edward S. Judd, the then President of the Chicago Board, secured the attendance of delegates from Real Estate Boards of nineteen cities to meet in Chicago and discuss their common interests. Thus in THE CHICAGO REAL ESTATE BOARD was born the National Association of Real Estate Boards, which has grown to include the Boards of over 500 cities in the United States and Canada and represents an individual membership of more than 40,000. It is probably the strongest body of business men in the world today.

ILLINOIS STATE ASSOCIATION. In 1916 THE CHICAGO REAL ESTATE BOARD assembled Real Estate men from other cities in Illinois through the efforts of Joseph K. Brittain. This was the beginning of the state organization consisting of Boards of over sixty cities and which has always had a most profound and healthful influence on Legislation affecting real estate. Every bill proposed before the last legislature endorsed by this Board became a law, and every bill opposed by this Board failed of passage.

These are some of the reasons why THE CHICAGO REAL ESTATE BOARD is recognized at home and abroad as the strongest body of business men banded together anywhere.

THE CHICAGO REAL ESTATE BOARD has a membership, in all classes, of nearly 6,000.

The Real Estate Owner and the Professional and Business Man are eligible to join one of the three following classes:

- SPECIAL ASSOCIATE MEMBERS. Individuals of allied professions, such as Builders, Architects, Lawyers, Bankers, and Property Owners, Supply Men, etc. Initiation fee, $25.00. Semi-annual dues, $10.00. (Limited to 2,000.)
- LIFE SPECIAL ASSOCIATE MEMBERS. Individuals eligible to the above class, who may obtain a Life Membership upon the payment of $1,000. (Unlimited.)
- AFFILIATED MEMBERS. Individuals, owners of apartment and store property, outside of the Central Business District. No initiation fee. Dues, $10.00 per annum. (Unlimited.)

Complete information as to Membership will be gladly furnished by the Membership Campaign Committee, in charge of S. Charles Iversen, Suite 1018, 8 S. Dearborn St. Tel. Dearborn 3192-3-4.

A list of brokers who may lawfully use the title of REALTOR will be published shortly, but not until every deserving Real Estate man in the city (who measures up to the high standards of THE CHICAGO REAL ESTATE BOARD) has been given the opportunity to become an Active Member.

ROUMANIA KING ROUTES TRIPS TO EVADE DEBTORS

Queen Also Shies Away from Italy.

BY RAYMOND FENDRICK.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

BUCHAREST, March 21.—[By courier to Vienna to escape Rumanian censorship.]—The Rumanian censorship has completely suppressed all news of the king's visit to Italy, which was the subject of the Rumanian king's visit to Italy before the Rumanian king and queen visited Rome, but it has caused a terrible sensation in all the Balkan courts and chancelleries.

Queen Marie was leaving on March 2 on a private visit to Rome to discuss the projected marriage of Prince Nicola, her second son, with Princess Mafalda, when suddenly Premier Mussolini's note arrived in Bucharest. Prince Nicola is a midshipman on the English cruiser, Benbow.

The action of Premier Mussolini is made even more mysterious because Queen Marie was not only to discuss the marriage, but closer and more confidential relations between the two countries.

Queen Marie was not informed of the Italian note, which obviously meant the collapse of all her plans, until her arrival in Bucharest on the night of March 12.

"Dirty Financial Interests."

"We did not expect that the visit of the royal family, intended to strengthen the relations between the two countries, would be associated with dirty financial interests," Foreign Minister Duca replied amidst cheers, answering an interpellation in the chamber of deputies.

At a special meeting of the Rumanian cabinet on March 14 Premier Bratianu informed the ministers that King Ferdinand had decided that he and Queen Marie could not go to Italy under such humiliating conditions demanded by Premier Mussolini, and the cabinet instructed M. Laszov, Austrian minister to Rome, to deliver this note to the minister of the royal household in Rome.

The royal Rumanian government brings to the attention of his majesty, the king of Italy, that his majesty, the king of Rumania, having decided on his visit to Rome, now regrets that he must decline the invitation sent by the king of Italy because of the note sent by the Italian government, which connects the visit with questions which do not affect the members of either family.

Arranged with Pope.

Queen Marie also had seen the pope during a private visit and had settled the old quarrel between the Vatican and the reigning house in Rumania, and had arranged for King Ferdinand to pay a visit of homage.

King Ferdinand decided that he must cancel this visit to the Vatican because the Italian people might interpret this as a sign of disdain toward the government, if he visited Italy.

The projected visit of the royal family to Belgium was also cancelled because of the tense relations between Belgium and Rumania over debts.

The royal couple will start on April 10 for Paris, later going to Madrid to see Queen Victoria, who is a first cousin of Queen Marie, and later going to London.

THE VOGUE for plaids has percolated even unto the ankle. "You Ask About Our Floor"

THIS is a picture of an office with a modern linoleum floor.

At the far end of the office are two men. The owner of the office is telling a visitor why this floor saves him money and is easy to keep good-looking. What he says should interest you.

"You ask," he is saying, "about our linoleum floor. My chief reason for buying a linoleum floor was that I wanted a quiet office. I have it, and that alone is enough to make me satisfied. People can walk and chairs can be moved on linoleum without noise."

"I had intended to buy a plain color linoleum. But when I got in the store this Armstrong's Inlaid Tile pattern caught my fancy, especially when the merchant suggested that I have it laid with a plain black border."

"Then came the question of laying. Do you realize that this floor is a permanent floor? It is; it should be here as long as I live, because it is laid for permanency."

"It is cemented down—not directly to the wood underfloor, but over a lining of builders' deadening felt, which is pasted to the wood. The linoleum is cemented to the felt and waterproofed round the edges. See if you can find the seams. They are practically invisible. It looks like one piece."

"About twice a month we wax and polish it. The wax is rubbed in thoroughly by the janitor, who uses an electric floor machine. The waxing cost is very low. We don't have to wash this floor. The janitor sweeps it daily with a hair broom, polishes it quickly when necessary with the floor machine, and I have a quiet, clean, good-looking floor all the time."

Gasoline Prices

A LATE bulletin issued by the Bureau of Mines points out that 1923 established a new high record in gasoline production in the United States, reaching 7,555,945,143 gallons—an increase over 1922 of 21.83%.

The National Petroleum News prints an estimate that the probable requirements during 1924 will be 8,236,617,000 gallons of gasoline.

Unless the 1924 output of gasoline shall more than equal the high record of 1923, the supply will fall short of the demand by at least 780,617,857 gallons.

It is a well-established fact that crude production has declined sharply, California alone shows a falling off from the 1923 high mark of more than 200,000 barrels a day.

Manifestly only those refiners who can extract the greatest yield of gasoline from a given quantity of crude oil are in position to render a major service under existing circumstances.

During the past several years processes have been developed in the laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), by means of which this Company is able to recover a greater yield of gasoline from a given quantity of crude.

The benefits derived from the operation of these processes accrue directly to the advantage of the motoring public, because the increased yield secured by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) exerts a marked deterrent influence on the price you pay for a gallon of gasoline.

"Ways That Are Smart, Tricks That Will Charm"

by Cornelia Lowe

NEW YORK—(Special Correspondence.)—This is a blouse that puts the cool in cool. The brevity of its sleeves and the looseness of its cut make it an ideal garment for the warm days to come. Fashioned of black satin and laced in the front at neck and hem with white silk ribbon, this type of costume blouse demonstrates direct connection with Chinese sources. Although some of the more elaborate among imported blouses show extremely short sleeves, which are sometimes banded with an ornamental border, long sleeves have appeared far more frequently this season in the separate blouse. Here these little shoulder caps redeem the model from too faithful conformity to the garment of the oriental laborer.

The accompanying skirt is of silk, patterned in large squares of orange and yellow. It is bordered in black and finely plaited. This black and orange costume thus maintains two of the typical color contrasts developed in Chinese textures, and at the same time sponsors two most widely adopted shades of the present season.

Black satin holds unquestioned sway in the world of fabrics. Red on black suits frocks in a combination strongly featured in recent importations. This high relief is produced by panel linings and pipings. As for the printed creases, these show a decided oriental influence. Wherever black satin foundations, they offer a wide variation of color and pattern in which the Chinese theme is by no means absent.

Nor does it fail to appear in the embroidery worked out on white crepe frocks and it even makes itself felt in some of the figured tulle and popular for resort wear.

Long, unbelled tunics, so frequently seen at the tea hour, often contribute an oriental suggestion.

HAROLD TEEN—A REQUEST FROM THE NEIGHBORS

MEN'S FASHIONS

Suggestions on Ties.
NEW YORK—(Special Correspondence.)—A group of young men recently wrote us a letter of appreciation for the suggestion given by our paragraphs on what mufflers a man's wardrobe should contain, and requested that we do the same with neckties. Which is rather a poser, as the subject is so much broader.

To begin with, the number of ties one has depends upon whether one has the necktie collecting habit or whether one acquires ties once a year, at the Yuletide season. The best we can do to oblige our young friends is to give what is our idea of the necessary types of neckties that every complete wardrobe should contain. How many of each type a man has will hinge upon his pocketbook and the number of suits and shirts that must be harmonized with the proper neckwear.

For every day street wear we suggest striped four in hands of colors that include blue and gray combinations, or blue and brown, a tie with green in it, which will go with either brown, blue or gray suit. For days when one is feeling especially gay there should be some striped neckties containing red or yellow, or something equally bright. Such ties may be used for sport wear in the summer with golf clothes. For the summer sport clothes there should also be one or two figured foulards, both four in hand and bow, if one wears the latter.

It is advisable to have at least one gray and white, or black and white combination, both four in hand and bow, to wear with business suit when one is going out to a semi-formal affair, or to wear with gray jacket and striped trousers, or with white, if one wears one.

For evening one needs several white bow ties for full dress, and two or three black bow ties for dinner coat.

Betty attended her first moving picture show with father and mother. After they were seated Betty Ellen looked around and saw the well filled upper boxes.

"O, look at the people up on the shelf!" she cried.

Robert was out walking with his sister. They had a race and sister won.

This made Robert angry and he said: "That's not fair—you runned faster than I did."

Betty is inclined to be selfish. Mother was trying to overcome it by having her divide her things with her sister. She gave her an orange and then asked if she wouldn't give her sister some.

Betty said, "Well, me will, but me wishes me wouldn't."

PREP COMPETITION.

SCHOLASTIC meets such as that held by Northwestern university Saturday, with entrants from widely separated sections, furnish a great stimulus to prep school athletics. Competitors gain far wider experience and honors than in local contests.

Are there valid objections to such meets? Critics argue against too much publicity and overtraining for boys of this age.

To our mind, the question of being spoiled by publicity rests with the individual. Some are not affected by columns of it. Others would become "burned out" by too much competition before entering college. Some ambitious coach, seeking points for his team, usually was to blame. Happily, such cases are becoming rare.

Overtraining rests with the coaches. We have known high school athletes to be "burned out" by too much competition before entering college. Some ambitious coach, seeking points for his team, usually was to blame. Happily, such cases are becoming rare.

With growing recognition of athletics in school and college life, and by payment of liberal salaries for coaching, we are obtaining a more efficient and conscientious class of men in that important field.

The Wake always has been a strong advocate of this policy. Athletic instructors frequently have more influence on school life than professors, more influence on the boys under their direct charge than the boys' parents. It is, therefore, essential that our athletic coaches be carefully chosen men with high ideals of sportsmanship and with the correct sense of duty.

Under such tutelage and supervision, The Wake approves these intercollegiate scholastic meets.

To Bob, or Not to Bob? I'm sure that would look all right. My husband says I'd look a sight. My head would feel so free and light. And hats would never again be tight.

STANFORD DIVER HERE FOR N. A. A. U. MEET

PREP COMPETITION.

Al White of Leland Stanford university, national high springboard diving champion, arrived in Chicago yesterday to prepare for the National A. A. U. indoor swimming, relay, and water polo championships at the Illinois A. C. next week. All contests will be held in pools of the tricolor club and Loyola university. The first events will be held one week from tonight.

Ernest Brandsten, swimming coach of the Stanford team, accompanied the diver on his journey to New York to make final arrangements for his Olympic trip. Brandsten will have charge of the divers in the world's competition in France next summer.

Other members of the Stanford team are making the trip east by the southern route and will compete in a college meet in New Orleans Friday night.

Other Teams on Way. The Olympic club swimming and water polo teams of San Francisco are on their way to Chicago and will arrive tomorrow. The coast natators will be quartered at the Sovereign hotel, where they will take advantage of the pool and practice water polo in secrecy.

Leo Fraser of the Ambassador Swimming club of Los Angeles, national long springboard champion, is coming east with the Olympic club team. He will join White at the I. A. C., where both will practice every day from the boards which will be used in the competition.

Four Polo Teams Entered. Although entries do not close until midnight today, it is an assured fact that only four teams will enter the water polo competition. Aside from the I. A. C. squad, present national champion, the New York A. C., C. C. A., and Olympic club of San Francisco have entered teams. The combination which wins the title will represent America in the Olympic games.

Jimmy Smith, Milwaukee Pin Star, Shoots 637 in Team Event at A. B. C.

A. B. C. LEADERS

Jimmy Smith and the Bedford Milling Company team of Bedford were the attractions on the first squad of five men teams at the American bowling congress last night. The Milwaukee team, rolling with the Smith Arades, put over a series of 637 and was away to a good all events start, while the Bedford rolled high score of the squad, a 2,840. Larry Gatzolo's Dave Davies of Toledo made 2,832, and the Maynard Steels No. 1 of Milwaukee. These represented the best figures.

After several days of jetting and after as regards the manufacture of new faces well up among the ten high leaders, there was a change during the matinee events when Rasmussen and Renner of Indianapolis combined for a 1,386 and gained seventh place.

Lorenz Leads in Singles. This pair showed good teamwork. In fact, it was the best concerted effort yet demonstrated in the tournament. Rasmussen scored 637, and his partner had a series of 649.

There were numerous good prize winning scores made not only in this event, but in the singles as well. Leading in the latter was J. Lorenz of Dubuque, who hit 674. Two ordinary double century games were followed by a 207 count that pulled him in front for the day.

Right behind came W. Wheeler of Indianapolis with his 672. Unlike the leader, he started off with a big game of 672, and then went down grade.

High Doubles Scores. The 688 of Kemp of Duluth stood as the third best singles of the day while in the all-events Walter Reppenhagen of Detroit shot the best nine games, getting 1,843.

There was an appreciable dent made in the prize money from a two-man standpoint, for several pairs made their way above the 1,500 mark, and fifty-nine teams hit above 1,125.

One 2,800 total, but no 2,700 games, represented the speed of teams appearing on the last squad. West Penn Steel five of Trenton, Pa., shot 2,811.

Two more nights and the annual tournament of the American Bowling congress will come to an end, as for the five men event is concerned. Tonight and tomorrow night will be devoted to team rolling, while Thursday night will find many Chicago pairs and individuals engaged in doubles and singles play.

Following the tournament will come the annual staging of a local sweepstakes, which is open to any team that has participated in this year's classic.

There will be two squads of five-men teams in the "Sweep," one going on at 8 o'clock, the other at 10 o'clock Friday night. In the afternoon of Friday, beginning at 2 o'clock, individual sweepstakes will be rolled.

About 112 fives still have to shoot in the championship tourney. These representing Terre Haute, Chicago, Madison, Marquette, Watertown, Oakbrook, Grand Rapids, Aurora, Kan. kauna, Toluca, Quincy, Cicero, Elm. hurst, Findlay, Tiffin, Madison, Beaver Falls, Joliet, Streator, Fort Atkinson, Fond du Lac, Detroit, Appleton, and Benton Harbor.

Entries for the individual sweepstakes follow: 2300 SQUAD—O. Gnadler, J. Kovacs, P. McConough, B. Berch, O. Swenson, L. Levin, E. Golcher, W. De Groote, T. Moran, C. Gledhill, F. Fair, P. Barich, C. Nevertheless the opinion prevails in Indiana sport circles that Rockne's trip to Iowa City may have been for more than just to arrange for a summer at Hawkeye football school or to "pay" Iowa in its search for a successor to Howard Jones, as Rockne himself suggested here last week.

Rockne's Notre Dame contract expires in June, 1925, and he may be willing at last to accept some of the more lucrative offers to go elsewhere, which he has frequently received, it is felt here.

Curing your Golf Troubles

RECENT golf magazine has an article stating that Bobby Jones is up on the latest of both feet when he hits a full shot with a midiron. The article shows an illustration taken by an ultra-rapid camera in which Jones is on his toes just as the club head has passed the spot where the ball was. Do you think this is correct? I have always kept to the practice of clamping in the left heel when I hit the ball on any shot to the green.

ANSWER—The article and picture to which you refer have already been called to my attention, and my theory is that on the shot from which the picture was made Bobby was putting a mighty heap of hitting effort into the stroke. In other words, I think he was pressing, and even if the results of the shot were satisfactory I don't believe his form in this respect is to be commended. I certainly would not recommend it to any of my pupils to try to set up on their toes in hitting the ball. Bobby may do it and get away with it now and then, but because his style is well fixed, and his swing pretty well grooved, but that is not true of the average player. At the point shown in the picture where he is up on his toes, the weight should be normally be pretty well shifted on to the left foot, for the heel of the right foot to be back in position on the ground about the same as it occupied in the address. It is all right for the heel of the right foot to be raised up from the ground at that point, but the left should be solidly planted.

WHEAT DROPS TO NEW LOW MARK FOR THE SEASON

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Liquidation, with a break of 2 1/2¢ to a new low on the crop for the May and to within 1/4¢ of the lowest figures of the season on the new crop deliveries featured the wheat market. There was a noticeable lack of support and with numerous stop loss orders uncovered the market broke rapidly and closed at practically the bottom, with net losses of 2 1/2¢ to 2 3/4¢. Other grains weakened with wheat, corn being off 1/4¢ to 1/2¢, oats 1/4¢ to 1/2¢, and rye 1/4¢ to 1/2¢ at the last.

There was nothing in the news to cause any enthusiastic buying of wheat and support was lacking from the start. It was not until May broke through 1.04 1/4 that stop loss orders were uncovered, but after that liquidation was on in volume and continued to the close. May sold down to 1.03 1/2 and closed at 1.03 1/2, with July at 1.04 1/4 and September at 1.05 1/2.

Wheat Traders Bearish.

Weakness in the cotton market had some influence on sentiment and there were also rumors of developments at Washington unfavorable to the crop. The price of the present price level for grain and stocks. Lack of a large speculative interest counts heavily against the market, especially with American values well above a world's export parity. Export demand remains distinctly slow with no sales claimed up to the close.

At no time were corn prices as high as the flash on Saturday, and the close was at the bottom with May at 77 1/2¢, July at 78 1/2¢, and September at 79 1/2¢. Weakness in wheat and the lack of aggressive support were responsible for the decline.

Oats Lower with Wheat.

Oats showed stubborn resistance to pressure, but gradually worked lower in sympathy with wheat.

There was a noticeable lack of support in rye when wheat started downward, and with selling by the northwest prices declined and closed within a fraction of the lowest figures on the crop. Sales of 30,000 bu. were made to go to store.

Commission houses were fair sellers of May and July, while there was selling of July by carriers against purchases of June from smaller packers. Other carriers bought July at 60¢. Closing trades were at losses of 2 1/2¢ to 2 3/4¢ on both end and side, with bellies unchanged to 1/2¢ higher. Prices follow:

	High	Low	Mar. 24	Mar. 25
May	10.80	10.75	10.75	10.75

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

A majority of traders and commission houses were decidedly bearish as to the immediate trend of the wheat market with some looking for free selling as the season today with a head to a new low for the season on the July. The latter delivery was only 1/2¢ above the inside figure on the crop at the close, with September only 1/2¢ above the low. That liquidation has been completed it is not expected that there will be any permanent upturn in the market, although some are not lacking that a crop scare will get under way shortly in the states east of the Mississippi river.

Eastern buyers in May wheat who recently sold out their holdings and related to purchases of the deferred deliveries had little or no profit in their lines at the last. With American prices above a world's export parity few traders could see any good on the buying side. The $10,000,000 German relief bill was up for discussion in the house, but even though it should pass the actual effect on the market would be limited, as many traders see it.

Sentiment was decidedly bearish last night that it would not surprise some close observers if the wheat and corn markets rallied sharply some time during the day.

There is a decidedly more mixed sentiment in corn than in wheat, and some of the leading local traders are still confident that ultimately prices will work much higher. The fact that corn prices failed to get as low as the inside figure of the previous week, in the face of the renewed liquidation in wheat, around 600,000 bu. of the increase of 1,250,000 bu. in the visible supply was at seaboard points, which bulls indicated larger clearances in the immediate future.

Contract stocks of wheat in public elevators in Chicago decreased 4,000 bu. last week, corn increased 305,000 bu., and oats 25,000 bu. Wheat stocks aggregate 4,660,000 bu., corn 1,550,000 bu., and oats 2,261,000 bu.

Fall sown oats in the southern states have suffered from frosts and have been badly damaged, according to reports to the department of agriculture. A large acreage has been abandoned and crop production will be much smaller than expected. Fall sown barley has also been hurt. About 16 per cent of the spring seeded oats in Georgia were destroyed by the recent freeze.

CORN TRADING LARGER

Interest in corn increased materially Saturday, but in wheat fell considerably. Total purchases for the day were nearly 13,000,000 bu. less than a week ago. Details as compiled by the grain futures commission follow, last three figures omitted:

Safe Bonds for Investment

The Making of Good Bonds

OF COURSE, the most important thing about a bond is its underlying security—the physical assets behind it, the product or service it represents, the record of earnings and management, if it is a corporation issue; or the financial standing and legality, if the issue is of government or municipal origin. But, second only in importance to this is the house responsible to the investing public for the issue.

Thorough Investigation

Bond issues originated by Halsey, Stuart & Co. have the most thorough investigation of all underlying values. The ability to pay principal and interest is scrutinized by accountants, engineers and appraisers, as may be required.

A Guide to Investors

Finding out who are the underwriters of an issue should be one of the investor's first steps in making up his mind about a bond. It means as much as the mark of a maker on merchandise. It is a guide to banks and bond dealers in selecting the issues which they offer to their customers. It is of even greater importance to the private investor.

OUR BOOKLET, "Essentials of a Sound Investment Policy," presents four cardinal principles of safe investment. Both experienced and beginning investors will find it worth reading. May we send you a copy? Ask for Booklet CT-3C.

"WHEN A FEELINGS NEEDS A FREEDOM IN PUBLIC UTILITY"

BY SCRUTATOR

The far-reaching and life effects of government utility business are illustrated in that public utility companies have added their securities to the list of securities to protect themselves from the effects of government. That is not a proper government. The fact that it is taken over by private companies how the "rising tide of government" is usually a great government in another country. It is quite evident that as has extended its functions in and social life, it has been weakened in its original effect, order, justice and defense.

Let us trace for a little way of cause and effect.

By regulation of utility, it made it impossible for them out of earnings, and drop the money market.

By high surtaxes and the exemption municipalities, government the utility companies from the market and compelled them to stock to people of moderate means.

Average purchase of utility this part of the country up around $12.00, compared to about $1.00 for the rest of the country. For many companies, and the single shares or blocks of them have been sold.

This has placed in the hands of a few, not educated in the market, and tempted by the temptation to let utility stocks alone the time the prohibition laws a summary statutes have been on the government's law machinery that has allowed administration of justice and of crime.

Public utility executives who are off in the field of finance, of course, feel a moral obligation to them from being robbed of their money.

They also have other competitors. To preserve the market, securities it is necessary to prevent from selling their good bonds and investing in utilities a resulting disaster for all concerned.

In the meantime the shareholders most abandoned solicitation or by mail, thus avoiding conflict of interest.

As a result there has been a underground war going on in and other cities between the utility companies, and many other companies have been driven out of business.

The word has been passed along some of the alchemists that it is to let utility stocks alone the temptation to work the new law is a powerful one.

While the utility companies are in keeping good utility in the hands of small investors have an equal interest in preventing class of investors from being victimized by the fraud of inflation by worthless utility paper.

By encouraging the purchase of modern type of utility securities have created a good will which has been the result of the story of the new finance, also a commentary of the story of government of its primary field while extending itself into fields where it is doubt whether there will be any government intervention.
